

Truman decisions shaped history

Harry S. Truman, responding to frightening emergencies in the early days of the era of confrontation, made six major foreign policy decisions that shaped world history.

Five of the decisions — the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, the Berlin airlift, the support of Yugoslavia against Moscow and the formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — sustained a Western Europe prostrated by World War II and threatened by Joseph Stalin's appetite for political conquest.

The sixth had an incalculable impact on Asia and was a prelude to years of agonizing U.S. experience there. It was the decision to intervene on the side of South Korea against the Soviet-backed invasion by the North Korean Communists in 1950.

"When President Truman made a decision, he moved fast," one of his secretaries of state, the late Dean Acheson, said.

The president moved fast in the postwar years when it became clear that the Soviet Union was establishing an unchallengeable sphere in Eastern Europe, and Moscow seemed intent upon expanding it by an offensive combining subversion and political pressure.

When Stalin aimed this sort of drive at Greece and Turkey, astride the vitally important eastern Mediterranean, the President laid down what became known as the Truman Doctrine. It warned Stalin in early 1947 that the United States "cannot allow changes in the status quo in violation of the Charter of the United Nations by such methods as coercion or by such subterfuges as political infiltration."

Strongly supported by Congress and accompanied by massive economic aid, the doctrine kept the two pressured nations afloat and gave them time to secure themselves.

As the Russians chipped, piece by piece, at Eastern Europe, setting up one satellite regime after another, the United States turned its worried attention to Western Europe, shattered by more than five years of destructive war and virtually defenseless.

The Marshall Plan, named for Gen. George C. Marshall, then secretary of state, produced an economic miracle, to the often-voiced dismay and anger of Moscow. In a brief period, massive U.S. aid restored Western Europe to economic health and set it on the road to prosperity behind a screen of security implied by U.S. power.

In mid-1947, Stalin expelled Marshal Tito and his Yugoslavs from the community of Communist parties for failure to obey him unquestioningly. Tito was able to withstand Stalin's wrath because of support, both material and implied, from Washington. That also had a decisive effect on the future of Greece. No longer did Communist forces harassing the Greek government have ready refuge across the border in Yugoslavia, and the Red effort there collapsed soon after.

Early in 1948 Stalin directed enormous pressure on West Berlin, an allied-occupied enclave 110 miles inside the Soviet occupation zone of Germany. Obviously aiming to secure West Berlin for the Communists, the Russians blockaded all access by land and sea.

The response was swift — a massive airlift unprecedented in history that supplied West Berlin what it needed to survive until Stalin in 1949 conceded

Targets of bomb raids revealed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. bombers blasted the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Vietnam with more than 1,400 strikes in the past week and devastated scores of military targets, the U.S. Command reported today.

The Command, breaking its silence on the heaviest air attack of the Vietnam war, reported in a special communique that more than a dozen different types of targets were attacked, including some for the first time in the war.

The report covered the period from Dec. 18 until late Dec. 24, when the bombing over the North was halted for a 36-hour Christmas cease-fire. It was resumed Tuesday afternoon.

The Command also announced the loss of two more planes in the Hanoi-Haiphong blitz, including the 12th B-52 bomber it has admitted losing in the attack.

The U.S. communique said: "Targets struck included railyards, shipyards, command and control facilities, warehouse and trans-shipment points, communications facilities, vehicle repair facilities, power plants, railway bridges, railroad rolling stock, truck parks, MIG bases, air defense radars, and surface-to-air missile and anti-aircraft artillery sites."

North Vietnam charges that the American bombers have also devastated scores of populated areas, wiped out entire villages, killed or wounded thousands of civilians and destroyed hospitals, churches and schools.

The U.S. Command said Air Force,

Navy and Marine Corps fighter-bombers made more than 1,000 strikes against the Hanoi and Haiphong industrial complex during the seven-day period, and B-52 heavy bombers made more than 400 strikes.

The 400 B-52 strikes dropped more than 10,000 tons of bombs, the command said, or the equivalent of 2,000 fighter-bomber strikes.

The command has announced a total of 20 U.S. planes lost in the air offensive against North Vietnam's heartland, with 75 Americans missing, killed or captured. Hanoi claimed eight more B-52s and an F-4 fighter-bomber, shot down Tuesday, for a total of 55 planes, including 18 B-52s since the first raid on Dec. 18.

The U.S. Command said the North Vietnamese fired more than 600 surface-to-air missiles during the strikes, the most intense fire American pilots have ever encountered in Indochina.

The command reported one MIG-21 downed by an Air Force F-4 fighter-bomber near Hanoi but did not say how many other MIGs attacked the American raiders.

The command said pilots reported scores of sustained fires and secondary explosions in attacks on major targets including the Hanoi port facility, the Haiphong fuel depot and the Haiphong shipyard.

Air Force F-4 Phantom fighters dropped laser-guided bombs on Hanoi Radio the official voice of North Vietnam.

Pilots reported numerous direct hits

Funeral for Truman to be kept simple

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — For the final time, Harry S. Truman today travels the half mile from his home to the presidential library that bears his name.

When his coffin arrives, in quiet pomp reserved for statesmen, a military band will play "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief" for him for the last time. It was a greeting he heard often in the years 1945 to 1953 when he was President of the United States.

The nation he led from war into the chill of an uneasy peace will have a day of mourning Thursday, the day of the funeral, to commemorate the man whose dearest wish was to be known as "The People's President."

In keeping with Truman's and Mrs. Truman's wishes, the ceremony transferring the body from the funeral home to the library where he will be buried was to be simple. Mrs. Truman, 87, would not participate today, a family spokesman said.

The widow was at home today with her daughter, Margaret, son-in-law Clifton Daniel and their four sons.

Richard M. Nixon, 37th president of the United States and Lyndon B. Johnson, the 36th, were to be at the library today to bid farewell to the 33rd president.

The family spokesman said they would visit Mrs. Truman at home. The President planned to leave Independence immediately afterward, but Johnson may remain for the funeral Thursday.

Truman, a World War I artillery captain, will receive a 21-gun salute when the coffin arrives at the library for 21 hours of lying in state. The salute battery is from Battery D, 1st Battalion of the 129th Field Artillery — the same outfit Truman served.

The family still has not announced the guests invited for the funeral nor the pall bearers, but apparently they will be mostly intimates of the Trumans.

A memorial service is scheduled in Washington's National Cathedral at 11 a.m. Jan. 5 after Congress begins its new session.

Truman's sister, Mary Jane Truman, will not be able to attend his funeral because she is recovering in Research Hospital from a broken hip. She will watch the activities on television.

In a private service today, the grand master and past grand master of the Missouri Masonic lodge, of which Truman was a member, will conduct a brief memorial.

Mrs. Truman had asked that original plans for up to five days of ceremony be shortened.

"We felt unjustified to add to her strain," the family spokesman said. "We wanted to avoid as much strain on her as possible."

He noted that Mrs. Truman had spent 16 hours at the former president's bedside Christmas Day, the day before he died.

Mostly, the honor of paying last respects is reserved for close family and friends and the ordinary people with whom Truman was strongly identified in his 88 years.

Bus rammed, 19 on outing killed

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — A truck loaded with cattle jackknifed on a narrow bridge near here and slammed into a chartered bus carrying a church youth group bound for a holiday ski outing and religious retreat. Authorities said 19 were killed, 16 injured.

The young people were from the Woodlawn Baptist Church in Austin, Tex.

Ambulance driver Harvey Stihm said the bus "was hit hard enough so that the front end was pushed about halfway through the bus like an accordion. It was torn all to pieces."

The bus wrecked Tuesday night was the second of two school buses carrying the youth group.

The driver of the first bus, John Roberts, said that after passing the truck he looked in the rear view mirror and saw the lights of the second bus flash and go out on the bridge.

"I stopped the bus and our leader Ron Killough ran back to see what happened," Roberts said. "I already knew I stood up in the bus and made an announcement to the kids. I told them, 'You're going to see something you've probably never seen before in your life. If you can't stand to see your brothers and sisters mangled and possibly killed, don't get off the bus.'"

"Just pray..."

Another ambulance driver said the scene "looked like a disaster area. There were a lot of people down there trying to separate the living from the dead. The windows were all broken out of the bus. Fuel was all over the road."

Frank Stanley, a radio newsman from Clovis, said seats in the bus were torn from their moorings by the impact and the frame of the bus tore loose from the body.

Stanley said, "The bodies were stacked off to the side of the road and covered with blankets or coats. Items normally taken on outings were strewn about — things like backpacks and sleds."

Some of the injured weren't removed from the twisted and fused wreckage of the bus for as long as two hours after the accident. Neither vehicle burned. Traffic was blocked for about six hours.

The accident occurred as two buses carrying a total of about 67 persons crossed the bridge on U.S. 60-84 about 12 miles east of this small eastern New Mexico town. The span is only 25 feet long.

State police said the first bus passed the eastbound cattle truck without incident. The truck then apparently struck the bridge railing and the trailer swung into the path of the second bus.

The buses were heading for Vadito, a New Mexico ski area near a major Baptist assembly site, Glorieta

Looters hunt treasure in Managua

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the country's strong man, blamed a rash of fires that broke out late Tuesday afternoon on businessmen "trying to get insurance money for their buildings."

"A lot of businessmen had insurance against fire damage but no insurance against earthquake damage," said Somoza as the flames lit the sky over the downtown section.

Others blamed the fires on looters hoping to hide their activities from national guard patrols. And some of the fires were started by demolition teams dynamiting shaky structures.

The troops had orders to shoot looters on sight, but only occasional casualties were reported in the confrontations between the troops and those who refused to heed the order for general evacuation of the city.

There also were clashes between groups of survivors combing the ruins for food as well as loot.

"We turn into animals when we get so hungry," said one man as he ran from a pillaged supermarket. "We'll do almost anything to get something to eat."

The latest official estimate of casualties in the quake Saturday was 3,000 to 6,000 dead and up to 20,000 seriously injured.

Rescue workers continued to burn unidentified and unclaimed bodies pulled from under piles of debris. Bodies that weren't burned were buried in common graves.

Vultures circled overhead and often got to the bodies before the burial squads. A stench blanketed the ruins as the hot sun hastened decomposition.

Aid poured in from abroad as many of the survivors began to settle down in villages surrounding the capital. But a number of those who had left the city defied the national guard and returned to try to salvage belongings from what remained of their dwellings.

Roads in and out of the city were jammed. Trucks and cars arrived empty and left with loads of goods pulled from the rubble.

Col. Frank Simons, in charge of the big U.S. relief program, said there was a big shortage of trucks to deliver supplies to emergency food and medical stations.

"Let's face it," he said, "the truck owners would rather drive their families out of town than serve the government. And you can't blame them."

Simons said the three immediate problems were the complete evacuation of the city and the orderly distribution of food and water to survivors.

Drinking water was being distributed at key relief stations, but many of those remaining in the downtown area were drinking untreated water.

The U.S. Agency for International Development said the United States is providing $3 million in relief supplies and other aid.

Somoza has vowed to rebuild the city of 300,000 people on its present site, but one Venezuelan expert said this would be impossible due to the soft subsoil.

"The whole town must be blown up," said Ruben Teresani. "It would save water and get rid of all the dangerous buildings."

Sunny skies predicted for Truman services

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Weather Service has predicted mostly sunny skies with a warming trend during services for former President Harry S. Truman Wednesday and Thursday.

Light westerly winds are expected Wednesday with highs in the low 50's. Wednesday's low should be in the upper 30's, with a high in the upper 50's predicted Thursday.

Lindquists accused of murdering Johnny

CHICAGO (AP) — The parents of 7-year-old Johnny Lindquist were accused today of murdering the boy who was knocked senseless in a beating that authorities said his father inflicted.

The youngster died Aug. 31, more than a month after he was hospitalized.

A Cook County grand jury returned the indictments, naming William and Irene Lindquist.

Johnny was a ward of the state since shortly after his birth because his parents were unable to care for him. He was taken from the home of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. vanek, of Tigerton, Wis., March 28 and was returned to his natural parents for trial replacement.

State caseworkers said Johnny and his parents seemed to be making "satisfactory progress" when he was admitted to the hospital unconscious July 27.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

15 is too young for nasal plastic surgery

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 and have a problem. I am wondering if I could get my nose trimmed down a bit, or bobbed, at this age.

I would consider myself mature enough so this wouldn't bother me psychologically. To me this would seem quite simple.

How would I get in touch with someone who could do this expertly? — N.N.

Maybe you are mature enough psychologically, but you haven't matured physically at 15. You still have some developing to do. For that reason I doubt that a plastic surgeon would accept you at your age. The operation is not simple, either. It requires studying the contour of your face first to determine exactly what change in the bone shape will achieve what you want.

So wait a few years yet. Then have your regular physician refer you to a surgeon (plastic or ENT) who specializes in this type of work.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed is 35 cents and a long, stamped, self addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "Diabetes, the Sneaky Disease."

Does any hospital in my area conduct seminars on care and treatment of diabetes such as that at General Hospital that I see advertised from time to time? I can't go to it because of the distance and starting time. — C.V.F.

The booklet has been sent. But I can't answer your other question, simply because I can't keep track of all the programs on various topics that are offered in the 300 cities in which my column appears.

Two suggestions for you: Call your local branch of the American Diabetes Association. Many have classes and seminars. Or simply check by phone or letter with hospitals closer to you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can anything be done about the skin losing pigment and white spots forming on the arms? They look awful.

Mine are spots the size of a dime so far, but my son has larger ones. I am 69 and he is 44.

Would a vitamin or anything help? — E.B.

Your description sounds like vitiligo (vitt-ill-EYE-go) which is a spotty loss of coloring matter in the skin.

It's a baffling condition since the cause is not known. One good thing: It isn't a hazard to your health. It's purely a matter of appearance. (Of course the darker one's skin naturally is, the more the light spots will show.)

Vitamins will have no effect on the condition, one way or the other. Sometimes skin specialists can use drugs in combination with careful exposure to sunlight or ultraviolet, but the results are unpredictable. It may work or it may not.

The condition may spread, may stay the same, may disappear by itself. Again, no way to predict. For many folks, the simplest solution is to get special skin-matching cosmetics and just cover the spots so they don't show.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your opinion of a doctor starting a woman's labor by giving her a shot, stretching the cervix or breaking the water? Do many doctors practice this? Why would it be done if the woman was only a few days late? — Mrs. N.R.

It is done frequently and is based on the doctor's evaluation of the state of the pregnancy. You refer to being a few

Caution urged for pedestrians and motorists

MADISON — The state Division of Highway Safety Coordination has warned Wisconsin motorists and pedestrians to exercise caution during the last holiday weekend of the year. John Radcliffe, the governor's highway safety coordinator, said, "Our big concern is that we avoid turning the final holiday weekend into an 'alcohol holiday,' which turns out to be 'lost weekend' for some of our citizens."

He reported that during the New Year's weekends of the last three years, the yearly toll of traffic fatalities in Wisconsin was five. There were no fatalities over the New Year's holiday in 1968, but 12 died in 1967. The highest New Year's weekend traffic toll, on record for the state is 24, recorded in 1960.

"We must be more concerned with protecting ourselves and helping protect others as we move about in our roles as drivers and pedestrians," Radcliffe added.

2 charged in burglaries

Two Kimberly men were charged with five counts of burglary, including the Dec. 10 theft of a safe from the Combined Locks Police Department and an early Saturday break-in at a Combined Locks restaurant, when they appeared Tuesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Randal Fjellerad, 18, 238 S. Lincoln St., and Mark Hagens, 20, 622 E. First St., both of Kimberly, were apprehended by Combined Locks police following the Saturday break-in at the A & W Drive-In Restaurant, 427 S. Washington St., Combined Locks.

At that time Hagens also was charged with one count of marijuana possession, and following questioning by police, another Kimberly man, Mark Marheine, 19, 324 N. Sidney St., was charged in connection with the police station burglary.

Fjellerad and Hagens are charged with stealing a tape player and about $20 in change from a pinball machine from Max's Tap, Kimberly, on Aug. 7, and with taking about $90 on Aug. 26 from the Little Alibi, also in Kimberly. In addition, both are charged with taking about $70 from a Sept. 21 break-in at Kimberly Hardware Inc., Kimberly.

Police said Hagens and Fjellerad told them that they broke into the drive-in to steal money to pay for an apartment they were looking for, while they entered the Combined Locks police station to get back money Hagens had posted as bond for a speeding violation.

The pair said they waited for the worst possible weather to steal the 300 pound safe, taken early on a Sunday morning, and removed it by way of a fire escape. Also taken was a .38 caliber revolver, which was later recovered at the home of one of their friends in Kimberly. The safe was found the day after the burglary on Askeaton Church Road in New Denmark.

Fjellerad's case was continued to today, while Marheine, charged with one count of theft, returns to court Thursday and Hagens next Tuesday.

'Twas the day after Christmas . . .

BY DIRK VAN SUSTEREN

You think the busiest shopping days are before Christmas?

Not so, store clerks say. It's busier afterward. That's when people are returning many things that were bought during the past month.

Into the College Avenue stores they troop. Mothers with babies stuffed under their arms, loaded down with packages — toys, clothing, kitchen appliances. Husbands come in with ties the wrong color and youngsters with games no one wanted.

"What do they return? you ask," said one department store employee. "What don't they return? is a better question."

Smaller avenue stores seem able to handle the after-Christmas rush in stride. Persons return the gifts, usually in the boxes they came in and the price tags.

A larger department store, H. C. Prange Co., found it necessary to set up three special tables.

manned by seven employees, just to handle the unwanted or unnecessary items. This is in addition to the returns accepted in regular departments, clerks said.

"I think we took back more than we sold yesterday," said Florence Grotenhois, who runs a return desk in the Prange basement.

Items of clothing are most frequently returned, she guessed.

"Women often get skirts and dresses size 14 when they really need 16, and sometimes it's because the labels are not exactly accurate," she said.

A store manager at Gimbels Fox Cities said that wives more often return clothing gifts because their husbands don't know the first thing about the sizes they wear.

"A woman will buy her husband's clothing year-round, but the only time he buys her something like that is at Christmas. And they have more contours and sizes to fit," he said.

Usually, it is easy to return gifts. The stores believe that it's just good business to let customers easily exchange their gifts, and in many cases shoppers can get cash credit, charge credit or may exchange for other items.

Many shoppers are not even reluctant to admit that they don't like what they were given, clerks say. Others make up excuses. "But we're pretty understanding," said one store employee.

Often sales slips are lost in the Christmas shuffle and store trademark packages are missing. Sometimes, it's apparent that the clothing has been worn several times before it was returned, some clerks say, but they are not likely to raise a big fuss.

The gift return rush probably will continue throughout the week, said Mrs. Grotenhois.

"You can tell some people return their gifts when they take down their Christmas tree — by the pine needles we find in the packages."

No settlement soon in pact; teachers wait

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton — a trend-setter in Fox Valley teacher negotiations — apparently won't be able to settle on a new pact by the time the calendar 1972 pact expires Dec. 31, 1972, but there is no indication the teachers plan any immediate drastic action.

The teachers were willing to extend the old pact last year as negotiations dragged on for almost half the year but they aren't anxious for a similar situation this year.

Appleton negotiators don't have much company at this stage as Fond du Lac and Green Bay talks resulted in new contracts last week. Neenah is operating on a two-year contract negotiated a year ago and Oshkosh's current 19-month pact doesn't come due until next September.

Only Menasha public schools face the Dec. 31, 1972, deadline as Appleton, and there is no indication Menasha's talks, which started last October, will be resolved by that time.

Menasha is the only area school where the Teachers Union, as opposed to the Education Association, represents the majority of the teachers. Each is a nationally affiliated teachers bargaining organization.

Appleton negotiators will make a final attempt Thursday morning in a regularly scheduled meeting to come up with a new pact, but apparently too many issues need more in-depth discussion, including salary and fringe requests, to expect a settlement. The teachers are seeking an $8,018 base salary for beginning teachers with a four-year degree, a 5.5 per cent hike over the $7,600 base, and a total financial package having at least a $500,000 impact on the 1973 school operating budget.

This is one area where Appleton generally has led the Valley, although other schools, such as Neenah and Fond du Lac, already have agreed to pay full 4.5 per cent retirement premium shares while Appleton is paying about 4.25 per cent. Some other Valley schools are reaching or surpassing Appleton's salary base.

Possibly a more critical issue in trend-setting will be teachers' requests for more voice in school management. The Appleton teachers are requesting more effective involvement in curriculum decision-making. Other questions in this area are pupil-teacher ratios and the handling of disruptive youngsters.

Fond du Lac teachers accepted what one teacher official described as a "modified" management rights clause assuring some involvement in determining class size and other issues. But apparently more decision-making involvement would be preferred.

Apparently, one of the key difficulties is that the boards of education are holding tight to a management right article that gives all authority to the board, except that which it chooses to give to teachers. It apparently is believed that rule is more of an obstacle in Appleton than many other schools.

There may be another reason to believe trend-setting is a real thing since the schools at Appleton, Fond du Lac, Neenah and Oshkosh have formed the Winnebago Land Uniserv, an organization which provides consultation and training in all areas of association work, including negotiations.

Appleton 1973 contract talks got off to a slow start this year, with 1972 talks ending about midyear with new ones delayed until last month. Ironically, the talks had been shifted from a school year to a calendar year schedule so new contracts could be settled on before the fall budget decisions had to be made.

Quake information not at Red Cross

Because of the severity of the Nicaraguan earthquake, the Red Cross has announced that it cannot accept any inquiries on U.S. citizens or Nicaraguans, but has alerted persons on how they can make their own inquiries.

For American citizens, persons should contact the State Department, attention Mr. Bernal, at 202-632-3172. Inquiries about Nicaraguans should be made to the Nicaragua embassy, attention Dr. Rizo, at 202-DU7-4371.

Requests being made for donations include 3,000 tents large enough for six people, plastic containers for water and 3 million already prepared dinners. Persons interested in helping, or in giving bulk items, should contact the American Red Cross, National Headquarters, Office of International Relations, Washington, D.C., 202-857-3591.

Architects interviewed for terminal

The task of selecting an architectural firm to design the proposed new terminal building at the Outagamie County Airport was started today by the county board's airport committee.

The committee had interviews scheduled for this morning and Thursday morning with nine architectural firms. All of the architects being called in are either locally based or have representatives permanently based in the Fox Cities.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, chairman of the airport committee, said he believed in using a local firm if at all possible. Outside architects would be considered only if the committee could not agree upon one of the nine being interviewed, Jahnke indicated.

He said the committee hopes to make its selection before the Jan. 10 county board meeting.

Earlier this month, the county board authorized the airport committee to spend up to $5,000 from the airport trust fund to hire an architect to draw preliminary terminal building plans.

However, the county board has not actually authorized construction of a new terminal building. Funding approval still must be obtained from the board before any construction can be started.

The airport committee has proposed a two-story building containing about 14,000 square feet of space and costing an estimated $420,000.

The committee also is proposing that a portion of the cost be funded from the airport trust fund which consists of federal monies the county has received as reimbursement for land acquisition costs of the airport. Use of the money is restricted to airport development.

Projected rental of space in the building would amortize the construction costs, the committee has told the board. Under the proposal, Air Wisconsin would rent most of the second floor to house its general offices, in addition to space on the first floor for ticket counters and baggage and freight handling.

Van Susteren calls Family Court meeting

Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren, who last week voiced his objections to the county's new Family Court, has called a meeting for Thursday evening to discuss those objections with interested citizens.

Van Susteren said today he has invited the other two county judges, Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse, social workers, attorneys, members of the League of Women Voters and anyone else who might be interested to attend the session at 7:30 p.m. in the Branch I courtroom.

Under the new Family Court setup, scheduled to take effect Tuesday, divorce actions will be transferred from Van Susteren's court to Judge R. Thomas Cane in Branch 3. Civil damage actions up to $100,000 will be moved from Cane's court to Van Susteren's.

Van Susteren, in an appearance Thursday before the county board's judiciary and enforcement committee, objected to the manner in which the transfer of caseloads will take place.

He wants the break to be complete and immediate, with actions pending in his court taken over at once by Cane. Present plans have each judge completing the respective divorce and civil actions in his court, even though the proceedings might continue for several months.

Van Susteren explained to the committee that a divorce could be initiated in his court up to Jan. 1, and since there is a four-month waiting period before a divorce can be finalized, he said he will be tied up with divorce proceedings well into 1973.

Van Susteren also is unhappy about Cane now having the authority to appoint the Family Court commissioner, who represents the state in divorce matters. The present commissioner, John Ensley, takes over as district attorney next week, so a new commissioner will have to be appointed. And Van Susteren feels that if he still must hear a large number of divorce matters, he should have a say in making that appointment.

Aid urged for mass transit

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Mass transportation in Wisconsin is on its way downhill and isn't likely to reverse direction on what additional state funds now are available, government funds, the Summer Assessment of Government Agencies (SAGA) team has told Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Lucey's office released a summary Tuesday of the fifth in a series of reports from the 16 young people, better known as Lucey's Raiders who studied a number of state agencies and programs during the summer.

The report recommends a one cent increase in the Wisconsin gasoline tax, from seven cents to eight cents per gallon, to provide funds for state involvements in the financing and maintenance of mass transit facilities.

It also suggests that the state dip into the Highway Trust Fund for money to fund mass transit planning and to help municipalities qualify for federal transportation grants.

Similar suggestions in the past have drawn the ire of some state officials who feel the trust fund should be used exclusively for projects related to highways.

"Both public officials and private citizens must bury once and for all the idea that mass transit can pay for itself out of fare box revenues," the report to the governor said.

The SAGA team said there are 22 mass transportation systems in Wisconsin, ranging in size from one bus in Ashland to more than 580 buses in Milwaukee.

More than 23 million passengers are served by the systems yearly, the report said, but there has been a constant decline in ridership since World War II with an increase in the use of the private automobile.

The situation has caused many of the bus companies to shut down, the team said.

The group recommended that the legislature pass a bill allowing Milwaukee County to acquire and run the now privately owned Milwaukee and Suburban Transport Co.

It predicted the transport company "will not long continue to run" because it is losing money.

It also said the state Highway Commission should be allowed to spend road maintenance funds on such things as bus lanes, traffic control devices, bus passenger loading areas, terminals and parking facilities to serve urban bus passengers.

Wisconsin's Constitution should be amended, the group said, to allow the state to "appropriate money in the treasury or to be thereafter raised by taxation for the construction, improvement or subsidy of systems of public transportation."

The team said the state Department of Transportation should be reorganized because, it contended, the department was clearly dominated by its Division of Highways and thus works against mass transit.

There are frequent cases in which privately owned systems were being charged prohibitive insurance rates, it said, and asked the state to help control the rates and guarantee the availability of insurance.

It also recommended that the state encourage cities and counties to buy bus systems now in operation, and that it develop management standards to regulate operation of transit systems once they are given state funds.

Myse to seek 6-year term on circuit bench

Gordon Myse, an Appleton lawyer who last August was appointed judge of the 10th Judicial Circuit, to succeed retired Judge Andrew W. Parnell, said today that he will seek a full, six-year term in April.

Judge Myse

Myse, 37, is the first announced candidate for the circuit bench, but indications are that he is almost certain to have competition. If more than two candidates file nomination papers there will have to be a March primary election. Candidates can start circulating nomination papers next month.

The 10th Judicial Circuit consists of Langlade, Menominee, Outagamie and Shawano counties. In population, it is the largest single-judge circuit in the state.

Myse cited judicial changes he has helped initiate in Outagamie County in a statement announcing his candidacy.

He discontinued the practice of having Circuit Court terms at specified times each year and now conducts a continuous calendar, which he said provides for much less delay in hearing cases once attorneys have certified they are ready for trial.

Within a month after becoming judge, Myse directed that changes be made in the selection of jurors in Outagamie County. Basically, the directive provided that the master list of names from which jury panels are selected must represent a better cross section of county residents.

Critics had charged that jury panels had contained too many old people and

Impact still unknown

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—It will be many months before state government officials are able to assess the impact of studies made this summer by the Summer Assessment of Government Agencies program, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Tuesday.

Lucey said six reports by the team have gone to the Department of Administration and other concerned state agencies for review.

The team, known as Lucey's Raiders, was made up of young people selected by the government from more than 100 applicants and paid a top wage of $2.50 an hour to look into selected agencies and programs.

The governor's office has issued summaries of reports on mass transportation, child welfare policies, youth programs in the Department of Natural Resources, the administration of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and the Community Development Fund in the state Department of Local Affairs and Development.

Lucey's office said the sixth report, a study of state aids to veterans, would be released soon.

Robert Schroeder is new Prange president

Robert H. Schroeder, Greenwich, Conn., has assumed the presidency of the H. C. Prange Co., Wisconsin department store firm with two Appleton outlets.

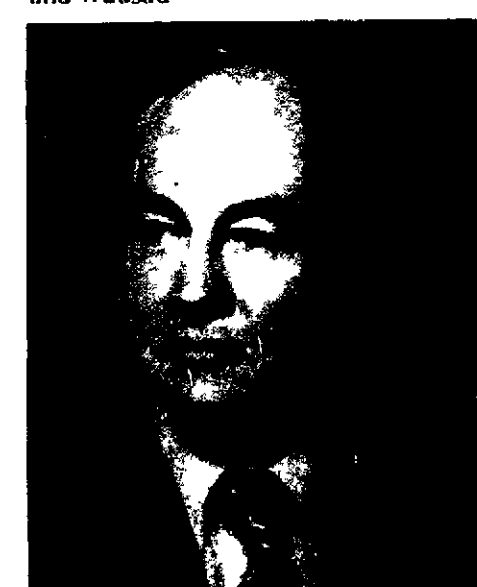

Schroeder, who will operate out of Prange's Green Bay office, was elected earlier this month by the company board of directors and executive committee.

He fills the vacancy created when Henry C. Prange was promoted to board chairman.

Schroeder, a Wisconsin native and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison and Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., has been a senior vice president of the R. H. Macy Co., New York. He has been in retailing for about 25 years, most of the time with Macy's New York and San Francisco divisions in several executive capacities.

Prange operates 10 department stores and 11 discount department stores in nine marketing areas of Wisconsin, including Appleton, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Madison, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Sturgeon Bay and Wausau.

Zoning denied for Neenah pizza shop

NEENAH — A small building on Spruce Street, which for years had been used as a retail store, can't be used that way anymore, according to a plan commission decision Tuesday.

The building at 205 Spruce St. for many years had served as a neighborhood grocery store, a bakery shop and ice cream parlor. All the uses were in conflict with the zoning code but were allowed to continue under a non-conforming use.

Now two men have bought the small building with the intention of selling take home pizzas.

But, the plan commission says they can't do it and has turned down the application to rezone the property to C-1 (light commercial) from R-2 (two family).

It's because the store was closed for about a year that the rezoning is needed. If it had remained open, then the neighborhood business use could have continued.

The application had requested that the zoning be changed to C-1, but after checking the ordinance, City Atty. Duane Philis told the plan commission that C-2, a less restrictive zone, would be needed to operate the carryout pizza place.

The plan commission decided that it didn't want to spot zone a commercial lot which is surrounded by two family homes and zones.

Mrs. Robert Arndt, 203 Spruce St., appeared before the commission to find out the difference between the residential and commercial classifications.

32 offices up for election

Voters in the cities and towns of Neenah-Menasha will elect 32 local officeholders in the April 3 election. Nomination papers for candidates for all of them can begin circulating Jan. 1.

Some incumbents won't be seeking re-election. Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker, Menasha, has already said he won't run again. Second Ward Ald. Walter Rempel reportedly won't, either, although he could not be reached for confirmation of that today.

A county executive will be elected for the first time in April. That race should attract the most voter attention. Only one candidate — County Board Chairman Orrin King — has announced he will run for the $19,000-a-year post. Many more candidates are expected, however.

Only one of five aldermen up for re-election in Neenah has announced he will run again. The other four are still undecided.

Judge Herbert J. Mueller long ago announced that he would not seek re-election to his Winnebago County Branch I post. Three attorneys have already announced.

Winnebago County Branch III Judge James V. Sitter will also be up for re-election. He has not announced yet whether he will run again or not.

Papers can begin circulating on Jan. 1. Deadline for filing them is 5 p.m., Jan. 30.

With some incumbents announcing retirements from office, there will be some new faces in local politics. There will also be new issues.

One of the biggest could be Twin City consolidation. Community leaders are now in the midst of an effort to place the issue of Neenah-Menasha consolidation on a November referendum ballot.

"That'll probably be the top issue," said Menasha Fifth Ward Ald. Herbert Batley, himself up for re-election in April.

The towns will have elections on April 3, too. All six offices in both the Town of Neenah and Town of Menasha will be up for re-election to two-year terms.

Here is a brief rundown of the elections in the Twin Cities:

—In the city of Neenah, three school board members and five aldermen will be elected.

Ninth Ward Ald. Milton Boehm said today that he will seek re-election on April 3. First Ward Ald. Robert Troyer, Third Ward Ald. Michael Ellis, Fifth Ward Ald. Thomas Willarson and Seventh Ward Ald. Donald Steber have not decided yet.

Boehm will be seeking his second full term. He was first elected in 1969, to fill a vacancy caused by a resignation.

Troyer will announce his intentions before Jan. 1, he said today. He is winding up his first term as an alderman, a term that saw him make many headlines.

Both Ellis and Willarson are undecided. Ellis, who also serves in the state assembly, said he would announce his intentions in time for others to file for the job. Willarson said he would announce in a "few days."

School Board members Nile Emmrich, Paul T. Mueller and Donald Buchta are all up for re-election in April.

—The Menasha common council will apparently have a "new look" after April, with both Parker and Rempel deciding not to seek another term.

First Ward Ald. Charles Heinz said today he would seek another term. The 42-year-old alderman, an active participant in council debates, will be seeking his second term.

Fourth Ward Ald. Richard Heindl will also seek another term, he said today. It will be his fifth, if he wins. He began in 1964, when he was elected to fill a vacancy, and won re-election in 1965, and every two years since then.

The 45-year-old alderman, who has run for mayor before, said he has still not made up his mind whether he will seek that post again in 1974, when Mayor James Adams has said he will retire from office.

Fifth Ward Ald. Herbert Batley, council president, hasn't made up his mind, yet, but said he "probably will run" for another term in April.

Sixth Ward Ald. Robert Winarski also hasn't made up his mind.

"There is a possibility," Winarski said, when asked if he might decide not to run again. He was first elected to the council in 1963, and has served four terms.

Third Ward Ald. Joseph VanLieshout could not be reached for comment on whether or not he will be running for his second term on the council.

Three school board members will also be up for re-election in Menasha. They are Forrest Weber, William Platt and Donald Thornton. None have announced their intentions yet.

—In the Town of Menasha, Chairman Roland Kamp and five other office holders will be up for re-election. None of them have announced his intentions yet.

—Town of Neenah Chairman Kenneth Heinz will also be up for re-election, along with five other office holders in that municipality.

—Judge Mueller's announced retirement from office, after 16 years as a county judge, prompted Thomas S. Williams and Dean P. Grant, both Oshkosh attorneys, and Neenah Atty. Leo Mack to announce they would campaign for the job.

If all three file nomination papers, a primary will be necessary. If would be held on March 6. There could also be primaries for other posts — like the county executive — if more than two get on the ballot.

—Judge Sitter has not announced his plans for April 3. Sitter was elected to his last term in 1967, when he decisively defeated candidate Thomas Williams by a 3-2 margin.

If he decides to run, he will be seeking his third consecutive term.

Cities to pay for own interceptor line work

NEENAH-MENASHA — In what could prove to be a precedent setting move, the sewerage commission Tuesday night diverged from tradition and turned over to the cities individual financial responsibility for operating and capital costs for existing and future interceptor sewers lying within their corporate limits.

The vote, taken after the commission discussed the proposed Neenah inter-ceptor project, was 3-2, with Commissioners Gilbert Krueger and Walter Chrapla, both of Neenah, casting the nay votes.

Chrapla said he feared voting for the new policy would be opening Pandora's Box and create countless problems in the future.

Traditionally, repairs or new construction of commission-owned interceptor sewers in both cities were financed on a 50-50 basis by the city councils. This was the case even if all the construction or repairs occurred in just one of the cities.

The new policy takes effect Jan. 1, 1973.

Under it, in the event the new Neenah interceptor is constructed, the capital costs and later the fees for repair and maintenance would be borne 75 per cent by Neenah and 25 per cent by Menasha, as these are the actual physical portions which would lay in each city.

The resolution was authored by Elmer Enz, and seconded by Joseph Kubicka. It followed a first resolution formulated by Krueger, which lost 3-2. Krueger's proposal would have divided the costs in accord with a capital cost ratio developed by Consoer, Townsend and Associates, which places capital cost responsibility for the treatment plant expansion project at roughly 60 per cent in Neenah, and 40 per cent in Menasha.

Krueger noted Tuesday that out of the six mile total interceptor distance in the Twin Cities, 73 per cent lies in Menasha. With the inclusion of the proposed Neenah interceptor, Menasha's portion becomes something around 65 per cent, Robert Bues, plant manager, said.

The City of Neenah council is now in the position of having to decide whether to construct the new interceptor, which would run parallel along the east short of Little Lake Butte des Morts between the treatment plant and the Bergstrom Paper Company.

A C & T report recommended that it be constructed to replace an aging section. The proposed cost was $785,000.

Greenville to submit treatment plant plans

GREENVILLE — The town expects to have the preliminary engineering design plans for its sewage treatment plant and collector system ready to submit to the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) by Jan. 1, 1973, and the final plans a few days after that, James Wunderlich, town chairman, said Tuesday.

That generally would comply with the extended deadline the DNR had given to the town when the original Jan. 1, 1972, deadline was deemed impractical. If federal funds are forthcoming, the new treatment plant conceivably could be built in about a year.

Wunderlich said the town's next move will be to try to obtain federal funds to finance the approximately $1.8 million construction. Also, the town must get approval of the engineering plans from the DNR and Environmental Protection Agency which were prepared by Donohue & Associates, Sheboygan engineering firm.

The town is planning to construct a sewage treatment plant at Evergreen and Greenwood roads and a network of sewers to handle the sewage from primarily the heavily populated portion of the town.

Farm environmental aid program canceled

- A dust-bowl vintage farm conservation program, the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, was canceled Tuesday by the United States Department of Agriculture in an attempt to cut the 1973 federal budget.
- The program, funded by Congress at $225.5 million, had been scheduled to operate in 1973 with $140 million released by the Office of the Bureau of the Budget.
- Wisconsin would have received $3,614,000 under the program and these funds would largely have been matched by private expenditures for conservation projects, according to state officials.
- The brief announcement that canceled REAP also ended a pilot plan of the Water Bank Program, which had been designed to subsidize farmers for keeping wetlands on their farms to provide habitat for migratory waterfowl.
- That plan was carried out in Winnebago, Fond du Lac and Dodge counties during 1972. Last year the plan received an estimated $65,000 in Wisconsin. This year each of the test counties had been scheduled to receive $15,000, according to federal officials.
- The Rural Environmental Assistance Program was designed to fund animal waste disposal facilities, sod waterways, timber stand improvement, vegetative cover and erosion control structures.
- It had been developed from an Agricultural Conservation Program started during the dust-bowl era to provide incentive to farmers to use soil conservation measures, according to officials.

Funding for the program had been sliced previously in the Nixon, Johnson and Kennedy administrations, but never before has the federal agency ordered the program ended.

Rip-rap work for erosion control on the Wolf River had been funded from special REAP funds for several years. The end of the program will mean that no more such funds are available, state officials said.

WIN enrollees get first choice in job openings

MADISON — Enrollees in the state's Work Incentive (WIN) program for employable adults on welfare will receive first preference in new hiring by the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations, the agency has announced.

The department, which administers the WIN program among its other duties, said WIN enrollees will be considered for vacancies ranging from clerical to middle-management positions.

At least 200 such openings in the department are anticipated in the next year, although some will be filled by promotions or transfers within the agency.

The WIN job candidates must meet the qualifications set for the vacant positions, the agency said, and they also must pass state civil service examinations before they can be hired.

Federal funds administered by the state WIN headquarters will be used to reimburse the state for up to 50 per cent of the starting wages for an average of six months to cover the costs of training, the agency added.

Examinations for vacancies will be opened to others only if there are no qualified WIN candidates.

The department said it was encouraging other governmental agencies, as well as private employers, to consider more job hiring through the WIN program.

The agency said WIN officials expect to place at least 650 WIN enrollees in jobs in the next six months. The federally-financed WIN operation arranges for job training and placement for individuals receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

The program, which operates through local offices of the Wisconsin State Employment Service, seeks to move the WIN enrollees from the welfare rolls to payrolls.

did not represent a variety of occupations.

"The change in composition of juries in this county is designed to provide a jury system representative of all segments of the community and thereby assure determinations that are fairly representative of the attitudes of the community," Myse explained.

Myse, along with the three county judges, state judicial officials and interested local individuals and organizations, drafted the plan for Outagamie County's first family court which becomes operational next month. Along with the family court will come a major shift in the workload in two of the county courts.

Myse was one of two Appleton attorneys who sought appointment by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to Parnell's circuit bench. The job pays $23,720.

Myse is a native of Outagamie County, graduated from Appleton High School and received a bachelor of arts degree from Beloit College. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan Law School in 1960. He was a law specialist in the Navy before entering private practice in Appleton in 1964.

Although he did a considerable amount of trial work, Myse was best known as a labor law specialist, representing primarily teachers and policemen throughout the Fox Valley.

Myse has served as Outagamie County family court commissioner (part-time) and president of the Community Guidance Center, and now is vice president of the Golden Age Club and director of the Legal Aid Corporation. He also has held offices in the Outagamie County Bar Association.

Myse was a member of the Appleton Plan Commission and was on an ad hoc city committee that studied proposed construction of a central city school.

Myse, his wife, June, and their three children live at 2614 Elmwood Court.

Retired qualify for food stamps

The Outagamie County Red Cross chapter has found that about 85 per cent of the 290 Social Security recipients who responded to a food program eligibility inquiry do qualify.

Mrs. Kay Kirchberg, chapter executive director, said the county inquiry has been completed and the eligibility cards have been sent to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Red Cross volunteers were recruited earlier this year to survey retired Social Security recipients after the President's Conference on Aging met. Cards were sent in the October Social Security check.

The program is the food stamp program which allows a recipient to buy more in food purchases than their normal cost. The amount of stamp value one can buy depends on their income. The county department of social services administers the program.

State road toll nears record

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Wisconsin's 1972 traffic fatality toll increased to 1,146, or three short of the record total for all of 1968, after the death of a Milwaukee woman Tuesday.

Carol Cress, 36, of Milwaukee was killed Tuesday in a two-car Waukesha County collision.

The Christmas holiday weekend toll increased to seven with reports of the deaths of Bernard Cornelius, 73, of rural Antigo and Harry Miller, 43, of rural Rice Lake.

Dennis Nahwahquaw, 25, of Milwaukee died Tuesday night of injuries sustained Aug. 3 in a Menominee County accident.

Ogdensburg store robbed

OGDENSBURG — The Waupaca County Sheriff's Department is investigating a Sunday night break-in at the Burr Armond General Store here in which $1,120 in cash and checks and miscellaneous items were reported stolen.

The break-in was discovered Monday.

According to Sheriff Loran Frazier, entry was gained by breaking a door leading into the basement and tearing a trap door off its hinges to get into the store itself.

Correction

A story in Tuesday's Post-Crescent indicated that a car driven by Dennis Ruebel, 26, 1500 Longview Drive, struck the rear of a car driven by Roy J. Klarner, 44, 507 N. Clark St., Black Creek, at the intersection of Northland Avenue and Oneida Street.

Police records, which had been in partial error, show that the Klarner vehicle struck the rear of the Ruebel auto.

Plane crash survivors reportedly ate human flesh to stay alive

BY ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Despair and anger followed the disclosure that some of the 16 survivors of an Andean air crash fed on their dead companions to stay alive.

Official sources on Tuesday disclosed the cannibalism among the young Uruguayan men during their 69-day ordeal on an icy mountain ledge.

A dozen of the survivors staying at a local hotel "were very depressed and went to their rooms immediately" when afternoon papers appeared with the stories, a hotel employee said.

One newspaper used the headline "Cannibalism Justified" with a subtitle asking "What would you have done?" The 16 were among 45 persons aboard a Uruguayan air force plane that crashed in the Andes Oct. 13. All of the passengers were either players on a Montevideo rugby team or fans.

The survivors spoke freely with newsmen earlier about everything except their food supply. They said 18 were killed in the crash or died of their injuries within several days, eight more perished in an avalanche Oct. 29 and the last three died in November and early December of injuries or undernourishment.

Most relatives and friends of the survivors refused to discuss the cannibalism but Mrs. Domitila de Paez said the reports "soil the grandest miracle of history." She is the mother of Carlos Paez, 20, one of the survivors.

Mrs. Sara Alvarez de Franco, mother of survivor Roberto Franco, said the reports "are lies, it is criminal that they are spread."

Another survivor who has returned to Montevideo, Daniel Franandez Strauch, said, "I prefer not to speak of it, it is a sad incident."

Cesar Charlone, the Uruguayan charge d'affaires in Santiago, said the survivors had made a "solemn pact" to say nothing until they had all returned to Uruguay. There, he said, they planned to make a joint statement.

One survivor reportedly compared the cannibalism to "a heart transplant," the survivors made to save one person's life, in this case portions of the bodies were used to continue a number of lives.

Another survivor described the decision in terms of "the sacred sacrament of communion."

"Had we died, it would have been suicide, which is condemned by our faith," the young man reportedly said.

One of the two survivors who finally hiked down the mountain and found help last week, Fernando Parrado, 23, told newsmen earlier that in the first few days after the crash, "we maintained ourselves with chocolates and jellies," they had purchased in Mendoza, Argentina, en route to Chile. Asked for more details, he replied: "We are not allowed to talk about food. You must read the Chilean air force report."

Navy buys up firm's stock

NEW YORK (AP) — The Navy has bought all the shares of preferred stock in the Gap Instrument Corp. for $1.7 million as a means of keeping the Long Island defense contractor in business, the New York Times reported today.

The company, which has a $3.1-million contract to manufacture 31 fire-control consoles for Navy destroyers, has been experiencing heavy cost overruns and has not shown a profit in the last four years, the Times said.

It is believed to be the first time that the Department of Defense has purchased stock in a private company, although it has sometimes received stock in cases of bankruptcy or reorganization. The purchase makes the department Gap's largest single stockholder.

The Times said the arrangement provides that no dividends be paid on the 17,414 shares of nonconvertible stock, and that the stock be redeemed starting in 1976 but only out of after-tax profits.

Joseph Langford, president of the Hauppauge, N.Y. firm, attributed the company's financial difficulties to a decline in other sales rather than any underestimation on the console contract. The company's loan sources also dried up, he told the Times.

The main difference between now and then, Pentagon press aide Jerry Friedheim said Tuesday, is that 11 of the 17 planes shot down in the latest attacks have been B52 bombers. Previously, losses were mostly fighter bombers.

The Air Force has been sending about 100 of the eight-engine B52s a day against military targets around Hanoi, Friedheim said. In the past week, he added, they have encountered more than 550 surface-to-air missiles.

U.S. plane losses figured at 2 or 3 of each 100 in attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between two and three of every 100 planes that attack North Vietnam are being shot down, the Pentagon says.

But that rate is "not materially different" from losses when the bombing of the North first resumed last spring.

defeat and gave up his attempt. Such thrusts pushed Western nations even closer together and in April 1949 NATO was born to present a common front. With the failure of the Berlin blockade, however, it appeared that Soviet attempts had passed their high point in Western Europe.

The experience in Europe had been that decisive U.S. action brought desirable results. The experience was different in Asia.

Frustrated in the West, Stalin eyed the Orient. The Russians, occupying Korea north of the 38th parallel after Japan's defeat, had heavily armed a communist regime. In June 1950 it invaded the South.

Again Truman's response was swift. The United States rallied U.N. members, and eventually U.S. power asserted itself. U.N. forces under American command were driving the North's army back toward the border of a China newly under Communist rule. That brought Red Chinese intervention and a disaster for U.S. forces, thrown back with severe losses. The intervention prolonged the war and it was mid-1953 before a truce was signed.

Korea had prompted the United States to seal off Taiwan and protect Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists who had fled there after their defeat on the mainland. It also influenced a U.S. decision to help the French colonial power in Indochina against Communist Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh guerrillas.

Howard Hughes flees to Britain after quake

LONDON (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes landed in Britain early today and immediately vanished, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Hughes had been driven from his luxurious hotel refuge in Nicaragua by last week's devastating earthquake.

The 66-year-old American tycoon arrived without a passport but was rushed through immigration controls at the request of American authorities, official sources said.

He landed at London's Gatwick Airport shortly after midnight, arriving in one of his own 10-seater Lockheed Jetstar executive planes. A convoy of limousines met the plane and took the arrivals away.

Hughes in recent months had been living in a hotel in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, but reportedly fled from there after the earthquake that shattered the city early last Saturday.

The Miami News reported on Tuesday that the 66-year-old recluse flew to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in one of his private jets Sunday. This report said Hughes and his party apparently flew on to some place in the United States because a foreign flight plan was not filed for the aircraft.

A Hughes spokesman in Los Angeles said he knew nothing about Hughes being in London. But the spokesman added that there was nothing unusual about one of the billionaire's planes landing in England since he has business interests there.

State DNR advised to tighten its belt in lengthy auditor report

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The handling of transportation allowances, staff airplanes and vehicles, sizable public relations contracts and "temporary" staff appointments by the Department of Natural Resources has been criticized in an extensive report by the state auditor.

Auditor Robert Ringwood reported that the state agency should sell one of its airplanes used mainly for staff transportation, reconsider its policies on granting state cars to agency personnel, revise its personnel policies which have kept some staff members in "temporary" positions for periods up to four years, and criticized the handling of an unwritten contract totaling $200,000 to a private public relations firm.

Ringwood reported, however, that the DNR was moving in some of the areas to correct the problems his staff had pointed out as the result of a regular audit of agency operations.

Ringwood's unit told the governor and legislature that the DNR should act promptly to clarify the status of personnel who have served in "acting" appointments for long periods, as well as to establish policies requiring agency staff members to move the location of new jobs within a specified period following their appointment.

The audit reported that there are currently 19 staff members in the DNR serving in "acting" positions, 15 of them on the supervisory level.

Those appointments have been held for periods ranging from 10 months to four years, reported Ringwood.

"We believe the department should be able to determine the permanent assignment of these employees in less than four years' time," commented Ringwood.

"Additional costs are incurred by the department to pay daily expenses incurred in traveling from previously established headquarters to new temporary assignments."

Ringwood said that the DNR should establish policies requiring transferred personnel to move to the location of their new assignments within specified periods of time. Additional travel costs are created and work time lost if such a policy is not in effect, he said.

"We noted one employee who continued to live in Oshkosh for a year after his promotion and permanent assignment to Madison, traveling between Oshkosh and Madison three and four times a week," said Ringwood.

The DNR has a twin engine, five passenger plane in its aerial fleet which cost $97,000, is used for DNR administrative travel, and is flown on the average of only about 15 hours per month, said Ringwood. The agency should dispose of it, he said.

The auditors also examined the use of state cars by DNR employees.

Records of 14 cars assigned administrators indicate that the vehicles, allocated full time to the state workers, are used on state business for 10,000 miles or less of travel per year. The Department of Administration recommends that no state car be assigned full time to a state worker unless it will be used for 13,000 miles or more of travel per year tied to state business.

Ringwood also suggested that the state agency take over the issuance of all fish and game licenses sold in the state, 75 percent of which are now sold by county clerks and their deputies.

The local officials are compensated for the work out of a share of the license costs, and Ringwood said that the program costs the state more than $500,000 per year.

The DNR could provide the service on the local level at a lower cost, resulting in savings to the taxpayers, he said.

Most of the recommendations in the regular audit, performed as a part of an on-going program that reviews the workings of all state agencies on a periodic basis, dealt with administrative matters within the agency.

Ringwood was critical of the granting of a $200,000 contract on the basis of an "understanding" with a public relations agency, but noted that the DNR is working to confirm the relationship in writing and will present it to the governor for his approval, as all state contracts are to be handled.

City refuse collection to remain on schedule

There will be no change in residential or commercial refuse collection schedules this week, according to the Appleton Department of Public Works.

But residents and businesses in the Monday collection zone will have their refuse collected next Tuesday, due to New Year's Day falling on Monday.

Residents are urged to have their waste on the curbs by 7 a.m. Tuesday, since extra work crews will be on duty and collections may be ahead of schedule in some portions of the collection areas, the department advised.

Israel faces crisis over next premier

JERUSALEM — The political crisis afflicting this dynamic country runs far deeper than Prime Minister Golda Meir's tentative decision not to accept another term as prime minister.

Indeed, superficial forecasts that the fix is in — that the intrepid Golda will finally agree to head the Labor party's list in the November election — ignore harsh realities which threaten to make the crisis worse before it gets better.

Thus, when a half-dozen privileged members of Mrs. Meir's inner circle met secretly early last month to pressure her into changing her mind, it was immediately apparent that her intention to quit was no mere political gambit.

She's 74 years old. Economics Minister Pinhas Sapir, one of the prime minister's closest cabinet colleagues and her presumed successor, read her a gentle riot act: You must stay, he said, and keep the Labor party together. But Mrs. Meir answered from the heart when she said: You forget my age (74). I should remind you. This is the reason I must say goodbye.

She has ample precedent — as when David Ben-Gurion, sometimes called the Father of Israel and Israel's first prime minister, quit in 1953. Golda Meir was picked by the party to change his mind. She pleaded with him but he flatly refused, and today she remembers every nuance of that conversation.

Mrs. Meir will go to Washington to see President Nixon early next year. Some shrewd politicians here think that visit, with the red carpet out and pictures of cozy Oval Office chats with Mr. Nixon making Israel's front pages, will catapult her into another term as prime minister. But they may be underestimating the will of Golda Meir, whose hard-headed realism has little place for sentimentality.

If she refuses to change her mind, the makeshift alignment of three parties which forms Mrs. Meir's ruling Labor party might not be able to withstand her departure.

Moshe Dayan enters picture
Enter Moshe Dayan, now defense minister in Mrs. Meir's cabinet and the most controversial, hated, loved and ambivalent figure in Israel.

Ever since the 1969 election, Dayan has been plotting ways to force the Labor party to write a national policy on the huge occupied territories Israel seized in the six-day war. With the single exception of the right-wing Gahal party, which frankly favors absorption of the populated territories, politicians here — and most particularly, Labor party members — view any such move as suicidal.

The reason is obvious: it would force a violent political upheaval resulting in no consensus, probably splitting the Labor party and further fragmenting Israel's top-heavy party system (with no fewer than 11 parties now holding seats in the Knesset).

Ex-Zippie now sorry

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ex-Zippie Patrick Small, formerly of Milwaukee, has apologized to the city councilman he hit in the face with a pumpkin tart pie during a council meeting prior to the Democratic National Convention last June.

Small, who began serving a one-year sentence in the Dade County jail last week on a possession of marijuana charge, sent a letter from the Milwaukee suburb of New Berlin two weeks ago to Harold Rosen saying that he was sorry for the incident.

Rosen, who voted against a campaign for protesters, was told by Small that the convention demonstrators had "left me feeling physically and philosophically exhausted."

"I've concluded that for my own good I cannot continue to consort with the same organization and people that I have identified with for the past several years."

National honors are directed

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon proclaimed Thursday as a national day of mourning for former President Harry S. Truman and directed that flags on all federal buildings and facilities be displayed at half staff for the next 30 days.

The President's proclamation was issued about an hour after Truman's death was announced in Kansas City. Nixon recommended that "the people assemble on that day in their respective places of worship, there to pay homage to the memory of President Truman."

"I invite the people of the world who share our grief to join us in this solemn observance," Nixon said.

A White House spokesman said he did not know whether Nixon would go to Independence for the funeral services.

Although Dayan himself seems to change his mind every day about the final borders of Israel, he is hawkish enough on the occupied territories to command the support of Gahal, with 26 seats in the 120-member Knesset, if he ever made his own run for the premiership. Communication between Dayan and Gahal is wide open.

In addition, Dayan would pick up perhaps 15 members from the ruling labor party, 12 members from the National Religious party (who interpret Israel's borders from their Old Testament readings) and another 12 members from splinter parties. In short, perhaps a majority for Dayan — a real possibility if Mrs. Meir insists on quitting.

Might accept for a time
But what if she does agree to stay? The superficial answer is that she would then quit halfway through her four-year term in favor of Sapir, Israel's long-time fiscal czar who, because of exorbitant tax rates and soaring inflation, is quite genuinely loathed throughout Israel. As prime minister in any head-on struggle with Dayan, Sapir would have the party operatives. But Dayan would have the country.

Thus, the combustible elements that threaten the present crisis would simply have a year or two more before exploding. Moreover, with no experience in military or foreign affairs, Sapir may be telling the truth when he says privately he would not take the premiership until the border question is solved.

At the root of this, as of so many other sub-surface crises here, is the problem of liquidating the 1967 war. The Arab states know what they want, Israel, nearly six years later, still does not.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again — Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains none of the pain reliever doctors recommend more than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin*

Matthau fun offstage, too

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The average comedian is about as much fun to be with offstage as a 95-year-old Anglican bishop with an acute case of gout.

Not our man Walter Matthau, the current top banana among film laugh makers. He is as natural as sunshine and cheerful as a mountain spring.

Walter weathered dire poverty in his childhood and six years ago survived a life-threatening heart attack. With a background such as that, Matthau doesn't need anyone to tell him how to enjoy his present success.

"Life to me is funny, real humorous," he said at a luncheon at the new Park Lane hotel here. He was celebrating the completion of his most recent film, "Pete 'N' Tilly," in which he and Carol Burnett star.

"I don't know why, but life seems to make me laugh most of the time now. I try to have a philosophy for every specific moment, but it changes so rapidly I guess I don't have a general philosophy."

Now 52, although he could easily pass for an athletic 40, Walter reached the peak after a long apprenticeship in both living and acting.

After his father deserted the family when Matthau was only 3, he and his mother and a brother moved through a series of odd water East Side tenements because they were unable to pay the rent.

At 11, Walter was acting in a Yiddish theater at 50 cents a performance. During the intermissions he sold soft drinks in the lobby.

After earning six battle stars as an aerial radioman and bomber gunner overseas during World War II, he worked his way through acting school working as a floor scrubber and cement hauler.

Slowly he became known as a competent and conscientious craftsman in Broadway plays and as a Hollywood film villain. Then his 1965 appearance in the stage play, "The Odd Couple," made him a comedy sensation. His next film, "The Fortune Cookie," in which he teamed with Jack Lemmon, confirmed his success. Since then it has been roses, roses, all the way for Matthau.

He still tends to think of himself as a character actor rather than a star, and likes to play in serious as well as funny films or shows.

"My only preference is for good roles," he explained. "They can be about anything, anytime, anyplace."

"I became an actor because I like to act, I'm good at it, and I make a lot of money out of it. What would I be if I weren't an actor? Dead probably. There's an occupation for you, isn't it?"

"I'd like to live to the year 2000 — that would make me 80 — just to see all the numerals change."

"But I have to have a certain amount of excitement, or I create it myself. That's why I don't really expect to hit 70. But I'm never bored, anyway. I think people who are bored are always boring."

Here are Walter's likes:

"Horses that come in first — casseroles, because steaks or roasted birds remind me too much of the whole animal — anything covered and smothered with gravy and with no bones in it — spelling tests with people I meet while traveling — girls' bottoms, because watching them gives me a tremendous feeling of security — the sound of Mozart and the voices of my wife and my son Charlie — reading Charles Dickens and Arthur Miller's plays — bakery smells and the smell of freshly cut grass — all kinds of people — and having dinner with Truman Capote when he's in a good mood; he's a great, great gossip with a great mind."

And here are his dislikes:

"Raw clams — whiskies and wines — girls who drink beer — all music written since Beethoven composed his last symphony — automobile horns — the feel of crepe — Shakespeare I find dull and Ibsen impossible — people with studied mannerisms who are out of synchronization — and people with bad breath who keep trying to whisper to me."

Anything else on your mind, Walter? "No," said Matthau. "There's less there than meets the eye."

Early jazzman dies at 75

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — "Offer everybody a drink on me," jazzman John Provenzano said in one of his last words to his family.

The veteran clarinetist died here Tuesday at 75.

Known as Johnny Zano when he helped export jazz upriver to Chicago in 1918, his career spanned the early years of the 20th century.

In a note written to his family shortly before his death, Provenzano asked:

"Give me a nice funeral. Lots of flowers. Buy a few bottles of New Orleans whiskey and offer everybody a drink on me. That's it. See you later."

Good football story

7:30-9 Channel 5 — Wednesday Mystery Movie: Banacek repeats its premiere series episode, a good one in which a football player disappears from under a pile-up, in full view of fans at the stadium and watching on TV. Hero George Peppard investigates quietly and comes up with a clever explanation. Lots of pro footballers here, including John Brodie who is quite good in a big role.

9-10 Channel 5 — Search reruns the episode which introduced Tony Franciosa. It's a lot of silliness about a search for duplicate bills — not counterfeits. And that's maybe a little bit clever, but not enough for a whole show.

9-10 Channels 11-9 — With a lot of good shows to be proud of, "The Julie Andrews Hour" repeats what is possibly its very best of the goodies: Julie and Robert Goulet singing, singing, singing tributes to Broadway show tunes, to Irving Berlin, to Cole Porter, to George Gershwin, to Richard Rodgers.

Sandler and Young at Milwaukee PAC

MILWAUKEE — Before you can sing Auld Lang Syne, Sandler and Young will be ready for the Performing Arts Center Stage here.

Specializing in counterpoint, the cosmopolitan duo will be appearing Thursday through Sunday, New Year's Eve.

Sharing the stage with the popular night club attraction will be comedian Lonnie Shorr, who is the only comedian to have emerged from Zebulon, N.C.

PAC show times are 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 7 and 10 p.m. Saturday and 8:15 and 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

State team inspects Managua

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The 12-man executive committee of Wisconsin's Partners of the Americas program said Tuesday it will send a three-man team to Managua, Nicaragua, to see what kind of help is most needed from Wisconsin in the disaster stricken city.

The committee, meeting at the Capitol, said Dr. Ned Wallace of the University of Wisconsin medical center and Robert Dunn, executive assistant to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, would make the trip.

It said Walter Meives of the UW department of photography would go along to document Wisconsin's effort to help Nicaraguans who were injured and made homeless by the earthquake which struck Managua Saturday.

Wallace said the team will try to leave today and will spend about three days in the country to find out what is most needed in the relief effort.

The committee discussed tentative plans to send doctors, technicians, medical supplies, food and clothing to Managua, but it decided not to launch any specific relief programs until it gets a report from the advance team.

Bill would seek more humane trapping methods

MADISON, Wis. — The ancient issue of requiring humane methods of trapping wild fur-bearing animals will return to the new legislature that will convene in January.

A bill to tighten the rules for trapping has been proposed after an interim study of problems involving treatment of all animals by a committee of agriculture. It concentrated on the subject since the adjournment of the last legislative session.

The effect of the bill now being prepared would be to narrow to live traps and killer traps the devices that could be used to take fur-bearing animals, with penalties for violations including fines and jail sentences.

The sponsoring group suggested an effective date of 1975, however.

This evidently would give wild animal trappers an opportunity to replace their gear at lower cost.

Trapping is a substantial economic activity in some sections of the state, and notably in those districts where the habitat encourages muskrats, the most numerous of the fur-bearing species.

Quarrels between advocates of humane legislation and the commercial trappers were frequent in earlier periods, but the issue has been comparatively inactive lately.

The new proposal would forbid the use of any trap, snare or other device that does not take alive or kill at once. If instant killing traps are used, they would be required to be set within a burrow or hole so as not to injure domestic animals.

UW Extension job practice is questioned

MADISON — The University of Wisconsin Extension has been accused by the state auditor of skirting state personnel procedures to hand employees higher salaries refused by Wisconsin civil service procedures.

The UW arm has transferred state workers from classified (civil service) payrolls to unclassified staffs and hired staff members as new employees to fill unclassified jobs in attempts to provide higher paychecks blocked by state civil service rules, says State Auditor Robert Ringwood.

Ringwood termed the job practices involved in extension as "questionable."

Involved in the limited review by the auditor's office are jobs which are primarily secretarial, data processing, or administrative in nature.

Ringwood said that the employees transferred to unclassified positions or hired into new unclassified posts from other jobs on the extension payroll were shifted because:

- They were at or near the maximum salaries for their classified positions;
- They were denied higher reclassification by the state Bureau of Personnel;
- There supposedly was no existing classified position to fit their duties;
- Other employees with similar duties within the UW System were unclassified.

Wisconsin Socialists want probe of bombing

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A congressional investigation into the Nixon administration's decision to bomb North Vietnam was asked Monday by a Wisconsin Socialist party leader.

Former Milwaukee Mayor Frank Zeidler, who is secretary of the party, said he had sent letters to Sens. Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire and Rep. Henry Reuss in which he contended the president may have exceeded his powers by not consulting with Congress before taking the move.

The personnel files demonstrated that there were no changes in duties, but merely a shift from civil service to unclassified posts and higher salaries, reported Ringwood.

He pointed out a number of shifts as examples, including an administrative assistant paid between $8,300 and $10,700 under civil service, and hiked to $13,500 in an unclassified post.

A management information supervisor, paid between $11,300 and $14,700, climbed to $15,500. One educational services assistant, paid between $12,300 and $16,000, jumped to $17,800, while another was hiked from between $10,500 and $13,600 to $15,200.

Ringwood noted that with merger of the state's two university systems, each chancellor is to have the power to appoint a committee to review such changes on his own campus. Differing criteria for such shifts may develop from campus to campus, warned Ringwood.

He said that his review covered only extension and the UW survey research laboratory, and that he suspects similar practices are taking place in other UW departments.

Racine man drowns in sauerkraut vat

FRANKSVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Helmer Haakenson, 60, of Racine drowned Tuesday when he apparently fell into a vat of sauerkraut juice.

Authorities said he was last seen about 2:30 p.m. and found floating in the vat at a food firm about two hours later.

Food symbols for good year ahead

The Post-Crescent Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis.
Wednesday, Dec. 27, 1972 C-1

Viking cheesecake is above, left, while a hearty sausage casserole is above, right. In tree design is a delicious cheese spread below, served with a hot chili dip. At the bottom, the robust Swedish glogg or hot wine punch goes with the whole wheat fruit bread. All are designed for "good luck and prosperity."

Lillian Mackesy

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Did you know that there are many food superstitions or legends connected with New Year's Eve that go way back in time? And that's why we eat herring at midnight or serve foods in ring and tree shapes? The age-old rule is to partake of rich fare before the stroke of midnight and into the new year to insure a continuity of prosperity or to invoke it if the old year has been troublesome. There's good fortune ahead when the first food eaten is in the shape of a ring (the never-ending circle of old into new), while the cone-shaped evergreen is a symbol of immortality and the good life ahead. In the long ago, fisherfolk always served fish at the witching hour to insure another year full of good catches. . . the miller and baker, plus the candlestick maker had their midnight tables laden with rich breads for the same reason, based on the staff of life symbol. Every people developed traditions that have lived through the ages into today when we share the wassail bowl or lift the glass and give the age-old salute to the ringing of the bells, the toot of whistles or the sound of party noisemakers. The noise is part of the great hullabaloo. . . it's designed to scare away all and any evil spirits of the old year and give the New Year a chance to get a good start. So here we go for a Happy New Year!

VIKING CHEESECAKE

1½ cups rye cracker crumbs	¼ teaspoon Tabasco
2 tablespoons butter, melted	¼ cup capers
16 ounces cream cheese	1 can Norway sardines, drained
2 eggs	Cherry tomatoes
¼ teaspoon salt	Parsley
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Mix rye crumbs with melted butter. Pat evenly over the bottom and sides of a 9-inch tart pan with removeable bottom, if possible. Beat cream cheese until fluffy. Add eggs, salt, lemon juice, Tabasco; beat until smooth. Stir in capers. Pour into the crumb-lined pan and bake 20 minutes. When the torte has cooled, arrange sardines in a wheel on top. Garnish with cherry tomato wedges and parsley. Serve in thin slices as an appetizer, or hors d'oeuvre. Recipe makes 24 wedges.

FLAMING SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

1 pound ground beef	1 pound Kielbasa (Polish sausage)
½ teaspoon salt	2 medium onions, sliced
¼ teaspoon pepper	1 garlic clove, crushed
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley	1½ cups beef bouillon
1 pound Italian sausage	¼ cup Bourbon or other whiskey

Combine ground beef, salt, pepper and parsley. Shape into 1-inch meatballs. Arrange on broiling plate, broil 4 inches below heat for 5 minutes. Set aside. Cut Italian sausage into 1-inch pieces. Place in large, deep skillet and cook over medium-low heat, turning often until browned. Remove sausage pieces from pan; set aside. Cut Kielbasa into ½ inch slices. Add to sausage fat in pan along with sliced onions and garlic. Cook, stirring occasionally until Kielbasa is lightly browned and onion tender. Add Italian sausage pieces and meatballs to pan. Add bouillon and 2 tablespoons Bourbon. Simmer about 15 minutes. Turn into casserole. Keep hot in low oven. At serving time, heat remaining 2 tablespoons Bourbon. Ignite and pour flaming over casserole. Stir casserole after flames have gone out. Recipe makes 10 to 12 servings.

TREE CHEESE SPREAD

1 cup soft butter	2 tablespoons cocktail sherry
8 ounces Cheddar cheese, shredded	Parsley flakes
8 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded	Assorted crackers
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard

Beat together until well-blended butter, Cheddar cheese, Swiss cheese, mustard, and sherry. Spoon onto serving plate, building up

Spiced oranges gala garnish

Among the most beautiful and delicious of garnishes for the well roasted turkey, duck or goose are Spiced Baked Oranges. For this, the oranges are boiled gently until the skins are soft. They are then studded with cloves and baked.

Citrus fruits are good with any course of a holiday dinner. If another garnish is chosen for the royal bird, a fresh orange and wine punch might be served before dinner. Slices of orange afloat in a cheering rosy bowl of 1 punch add interesting color contrast. At still another turkey dinner, serve orange slices or sections in a fruit salad. A celery seed dressing adds delicious flavor accent to salads of this kind.

Spiced Baked Oranges
3 medium-size oranges
Water

24 (about) whole cloves
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt

Grate very thin layer of outside rind from oranges; reserve 1 teaspoon grated rind. Place oranges in saucepan and cover with water. Bring to boil, then cover and boil gently about 30 minutes or until skin is soft. Cut oranges in half. Stick cloves into skin. Place in shallow baking pan, cut side down. Mix together sugar, corn syrup, 1/4 cup water, salt and reserved orange rind in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to boil and boils 2 minutes. Pour over oranges. Bake in 350 degrees (moderate) oven, basting occasionally, 45 minutes or until well glazed. Recipe makes six servings.

To prepare with small size oranges: Use 6 small oranges. Boil gently about 20 minutes. Leave oranges whole or cut in half. Use as garnish for turkey, duck or goose.

Spicy elegance

Citrus fruits offer interesting flavor accents to roast turkey or other holiday meat. For an especially delicious and colorful garnish, prepare glazed and spiced orange halves to decorate the serving platter that holds the roasted bird.

Oranges plentiful food for January

Economy-minded food shoppers should find fresh oranges in abundant supply in January, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Other plentiful are frozen concentrated orange juice and canned orange juice, cranberry sauce, rice, dry beans and broiler-fryers.

A list of foods expected to be in plentiful supply — often at attractive consumer prices — is announced each month by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. The list is compiled by commodity specialists from fact finding sources available in government and the agricultural industry. Foods found to be in plentiful supply and in need of marketing aid are then promoted extensively by the food industry. Consumers are informed about the foods on the current list through communications media.

According to USDA reports, the supply situation for the January plentiful is as follows:

The 1972-73 harvest of early, mid-season, and navel oranges is estimated to be 30 per cent greater than last season's large yield. Ample stocks of frozen orange juice concentrate and canned juice are available, thus assuring plentiful quantities of fresh fruit and juice in January.

HOT CHILI DIP

1 pound beef
1 green pepper, chopped
1 envelope Chili-O Mix
6 ounces tomato paste
3 ounces cream cheese
1 cup water
Corn chips

Cook ground beef and pepper in skillet, stirring to crumble, until beef browns; drain off excess fat. Stir in contents of Chili-O mix envelope, tomato paste, cream cheese, and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture comes to a boil. Keep warm in electric skillet, chafing dish or fondue pot. Serve with corn or other chips. Recipe makes about 4 cups.

WHOLE WHEAT FRUIT BREAD

1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup lukewarm water
2 envelopes active dry yeast
2 eggs
1/4 cup Bourbon
2 cups whole wheat flour
1/2 cup chopped candied fruit
1/2 cup chopped nuts
2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup apricot preserves
2 tablespoons Bourbon
Candied fruit

Scald milk; stir in sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm (105 to 115 degrees). Pour lukewarm water into large, warmed mixing bowl. Add yeast, stir until dissolved. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, eggs, 1/4 cup Bourbon, whole wheat flour. Add candied fruit, nuts and all-purpose flour. Mix to combine well. Turn out dough on lightly floured board. Knead 10 minutes until smooth and elastic. Place dough in greased bowl and turn to grease all sides. Cover with towel and set in warm place to rise until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch down dough; place in greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan or 2-quart mold. Cover, let rise until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in preheated, 350-degree oven 40 to 45 minutes. Turn out on wire rack to cool. Heat apricot preserves with 2 tablespoons Bourbon. Brush over loaf. Decorate with candied fruit.

TREE-SHAPED BREAD

Double above recipe. After punching down dough, divide among 6 greased fluted molds of graduated size — the largest, 6 to 7 cups. Fill each mold half full. Bake largest loaf about 40 minutes, each succeeding size loaf about 5 minutes less than the one before. Turn out on wire racks to cool. Cut off rounded tops of each loaf to make a flat surface. Heat 12 ounces apricot preserves with 3 tablespoons Bourbon, for glaze. Put largest loaf on serving plate, cut side down, and brush with apricot glaze. Top with next size loaf, cut side down; brush with glaze. Repeat with remaining loaves. Decorate with candied fruit. Recipe makes at least 25 servings.

GLOGG (HOT WINE PUNCH)

Cinnamon stick, 1 1/2 inches long
10 whole cardamoms
5 whole cloves
1 cup raisins

3 strips orange peel
1/2 pound lump sugar
1 bottle (fifth) brandy

Pour wine into saucepan. Tie spices in a square of cheesecloth and add to wine. Add raisins, almonds and orange peel. Cover pan; heat slowly just to boil. Remove spices and orange peel. For serving, pour wine with raisins and almonds into Glogg pot or deep chafing dish. Add sugar and brandy. Stir to blend.

CARAWAY WHEAT THINS

1 can refrigerator crescent dinner rolls
1 cup whole wheat flour
2 tablespoons caraway seed
2 eggs, beaten
Chicken Liver Pate

Unroll refrigerator dough and divide into four rectangles. On lightly floured board roll each very thin to a 6 x 14-inch rectangle. Cut into 28, 1 1/2-inch squares. Stir together flour and caraway seed. Dip each square into egg and coat with flour mixture. Bake on greased baking sheet in preheated 400 degree oven 10 minutes or until crisp. Serve with Pate.

Smart Shopper's Recipe for Week

Holiday puddings need not be expensive to prepare, as many people believe. Here's a recipe to keep on file that fills the need for a traditional pudding to serve during the Twelve Days of Christmas or on special occasions during the rest of the year.

The ingredients include canned fruit cocktail, now on the current plentiful foods list for December and January. The recipe serves six and the flavor is delicious. Drained peaches or sliced bananas may be substituted for the fruit cocktail, depending on the food market bargains for the week. If bananas are used, cool the pudding slightly before adding them. For a sweeter pudding, make fluid milk from nonfat dry milk, using syrup from the canned fruit for some of the liquid.

HOLIDAY PUDDING

1 egg
1/4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups fluid milk

The couple has resided on the same

Sheinwold on bridge

It takes more than high cards to win at bridge

People sometimes thoughtlessly say that bridge is a game of high cards. If you're lucky enough to be dealt enough high cards, you'll win; otherwise, you'll lose. The fallacy in this kind of claim is shown in a hand played in the recent playoff to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

Wasn't East lucky to be dealt those 21 points in high cards? What a winner he was sure to be! But let's see how fate slipped East a mickey.

New York expert Bill Grieve simply wasn't going to pass the South hand even though he was vulnerable and had heard East's opening bid of two no-trump. He bid three clubs to start with, knowing that there would be further bidding.

"Is that anything special?" West asked Grieve's partner (So many club bids have a special meaning that you learn to take nothing for granted.) "I think it's for the majors," George Rapee answered. He dimly remembered a discussion five years earlier in which he and Grieve had decided that clubs more than notrump should be for major suit takeout, or perhaps not. Five years is a long time to remember.

If South wanted majors, Rapee had the right hand; so he jumped to four spades. Grieve had to bid five clubs, and now see how lucky East was. His opponents obviously didn't know what they were doing! "Double," he announced.

South won the opening lead with the ace of diamonds, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy. He ruffed a spade in his hand, and ruffed another low heart in dummy. When the king of hearts fell, it was all over. South drew trumps and claimed the rest, making his doubled game contract.

"You've simply proved that distribution is luckier than high cards," you may object. Not so. At the other table South passed with his fine distribution, and his opponents bid and made three no-trump. Luck is what you make it.

Daily Question

Partner opens with 2-NT (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes. You hold S-J 8 6 5 3 2 H-10 D-10 7 3 C-10 5 3. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades. You will probably get to four spades as a final contract. If you cannot make four spades, the consolation is that your partner might well have gone down if you had passed him at 2-NT.

Plane crash survivors reportedly ate human flesh to stay alive

BY ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Despair and anger followed the disclosure that some of the 16 survivors of an Andean air crash fed on their dead companions to stay alive.

Official sources on Tuesday disclosed the cannibalism among the young Uruguayan men during their 69-day ordeal on an icy mountain ledge.

A dozen of the survivors staying at a

New violence blasts Irish holiday lull

BELFAST (AP) — A three-day Christmas peace lull in Northern Ireland exploded Tuesday, and at least 10 persons, including a 14-year-old boy, were wounded.

Security authorities believed Protestant and Roman Catholic terror squads were responsible for the bloodshed rather than the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Two young Catholics were wounded by gunmen roaring past in a car in Belfast's Crumlin Road, a frequent hot spot in the province's sectarian feuding. Two hours later, a man lobbed a hand grenade into a nearby tavern frequented by Protestants and wounded four persons.

The 14-year-old boy was wounded by gunmen in a speeding car in West Belfast. Shortly afterward, a man burst into nearby Stanley's bar, a Catholic tavern and shot a customer in the chest. The victim was reported in serious condition.

Early today, a man was shot in the foot on the other side of the city.

In Portadown, a predominantly Protestant industrial town southwest of Belfast, a young man was wounded when a gunman fired from a passing car near a tavern.

Police believed all the shooting was done by Protestant or Catholic killer squads who have waged a ferocious "eye for an eye" war for the last six months and killed about 120 men and women.

Their sectarian vendetta has mushroomed from a sporadic thing into a war within a war, separate from yet intertwined with the religious conflict that has torn Northern Ireland since 1969.

Two 30-pound bombs damaged a furniture store and a municipal office in the border town of Newry. Police said advance warnings were given, and there were no casualties.

There were reports of other isolated shooting in the province, but the British army said its men were in action only once. Troops fired at a man believed to be carrying a gun in the Whitecock area of Belfast but missed him.

local hotel "were very depressed and went to their rooms immediately" when afternoon papers appeared with the stories, a hotel employee said.

One newspaper used the headline "Cannibalism Justified" with a subtitle asking "What would you have done?"

The 16 were among 45 persons aboard a Uruguayan air force plane that crashed in the Andes Oct. 13. All of the passengers were either players on a Montevideo rugby team or fans.

The survivors spoke freely with newsmen earlier about everything except their food supply. They said 18 were killed in the crash or died of their injuries within several days, eight more perished in an avalanche Oct. 29 and the last three died in November and early December of injuries or undernourishment.

Most relatives and friends of the survivors refused to discuss the cannibalism but Mrs. Domitila de Paez said the reports "soil the grandest miracle of history." She is the mother of Carlos Paez, 20, one of the survivors.

Mrs. Sara Alvarez de Francois, mother of survivor Roberto Francois, said the reports "are lies, it is criminal that they are spread."

Another survivor who has returned to Montevideo, Daniel Fernandez Strauch, said, "I prefer not to speak of it, it is a sad incident."

Cesar Charlone, the Uruguayan charge d'affaires in Santiago, said the survivors had made a "solemn pact" to say nothing until they had all returned to Uruguay. There, he said, they planned to make a joint statement.

One survivor reportedly compared the cannibalism to "a heart transplant," the survivors made to save one person's life; in this case portions of the bodies were used to continue a number of lives.

Another survivor described the decision in terms of "the sacred sacrament of communion."

"Had we died, it would have been suicide, which is condemned by our faith," the young man reportedly said.

One of the two survivors who finally hiked down the mountain and found help last week, Fernando Parrado, 23, told newsmen earlier that in the first few days after the crash, "we maintained ourselves with chocolates and jellies" they had purchased in Mendoza, Argentina, en route to Chile. Asked for more details, he replied: "We are not allowed to talk about food. You must read the Chilean air force report."

Truman decisions

defeat and gave up his attempt.

Such thrusts pushed Western nations even closer together and in April 1949 NATO was born to present a common front. With the failure of the Berlin blockade, however, it appeared that Soviet attempts had passed their high point in Western Europe.

The experience in Europe had been that decisive U.S. action brought desirable results. The experience was different in Asia.

Frustrated in the West, Stalin eyed the Orient. The Russians, occupying Korea north of the 38th parallel after Japan's defeat, had heavily armed a communist regime. In June 1950 it invaded the South.

Again Truman's response was swift. The United States rallied U.N. members, and eventually U.S. power asserted itself. U.N. forces under American command were driving the North's army back toward the border of a China newly under Communist rule. That brought Red Chinese intervention and a disaster for U.S. forces, thrown back with severe losses. The intervention

Navy buys up firm's stock

NEW YORK (AP) — The Navy has bought all the shares of preferred stock in the Gap Instrument Corp. for $1.7 million as a means of keeping the Long Island defense contractor in business, the New York Times reported today.

The company, which has a $3.1-million contract to manufacture 31 fire-control consoles for Navy destroyers, has been experiencing heavy cost overruns and has not shown a profit in the last four years, the Times said.

It is believed to be the first time that the Department of Defense has purchased stock in a private company, although it has sometimes received stock in cases of bankruptcy or reorganization. The purchase makes the department Gap's largest single stockholder.

The Times said the arrangement provides that no dividends be paid on the 17,414 nonvoting, nonconvertible shares, and that the stock be redeemed starting in 1976 but only out of after-tax profits.

Joseph Langford, president of the Hauppauge, N.Y. firm, attributed the company's financial difficulties to a decline in other sales rather than any underestimate on the console contract. The company's loan sources also dried up, he told the Times.

U.S. plane losses figured at 2 or 3 of each 100 in attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between two and three of every 100 planes that attack North Vietnam are being shot down, the Pentagon says.

But that rate is "not materially different" from losses when the bombing of the North first resumed last spring.

The main difference between now and then, Pentagon press aide Jerry Friedheim said Tuesday, is that 11 of the 17 planes shot down in the latest attacks have been B52 bombers. Previously, losses were mostly fighter-bombers.

The Air Force has been sending about 100 of the eight-engine B52s a day against military targets around Hanoi, Friedheim said. In the past week, he added, they have encountered more than 550 surface-to-air missiles.

Honors for Truman planned across land

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From Hawaii to the East Coast of the mainland United States, observances are planned for Thursday's day of mourning in honor of Harry S. Truman, the 88-year-old former president who died Tuesday.

Military officials at Ft. Shafter in Hawaii and at the New York state capital of Albany plan noontime 21-gun salutes to be followed by 50-gun salutes, one for each state, at 5 p.m., in Truman's memory.

Some observances begin today, but for the most part they will be held Thursday, a national day of mourning set aside by President Nixon.

Nixon ordered government offices closed and flags flown at half staff.

prolonged the war and it was mid-1953 before a truce was signed.

Korea had prompted the United States to seal off Taiwan and protect Chiang Kaishek and his Nationalists who had fled there after their defeat on the mainland. It also influenced a U.S. decision to help the French colonial power in Indochina against Communist Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh guerrillas.

U.S. policy through four administrations was based upon the premise that China under Mao Tse-tung was an aggressor unfit to be a U.N. member or have normal commerce with America. That policy has been abandoned. But Americans still are living unhappily with what Korea helped generate in Southeast Asia.

on the main radio facility. They said their guided bombs destroyed concrete revetted buildings and damaged the main control building. The communications control center was destroyed and more than a dozen barracks and storage buildings damaged, the command added. Hanoi Radio has been operating at limited capacity since Dec. 19, according to monitoring in Saigon.

At least seven different air bases were attacked above the 20th parallel. The command said runways were heavily cratered, buildings destroyed and some of the bases left in flames.

The main Hanoi thermal power plant was attacked for the first time in the war with laser-guided bombs dropped by F4 fighter-bombers. It supplies the electricity for the North Vietnamese capital of roughly one million people, most of whom have been reported evacuated.

In the attack on the Hanoi power plant, the command said the guided bombs "destroyed a boiler plant and damaged a generator hall, a transformer control building and many surrounding structures."

Four other power plants that service the Hanoi and Haiphong areas also were attacked. These included the Bac Giang and Thai Nguyen plants north of Hanoi, the Haiphong thermal power plant in the port itself, and the Uong Bi thermal power plant northeast of Haiphong. The latter two plants also were attacked for the first time in the war. Moderate to heavy damage was reported.

Although the command did not say so, the pattern of attacks against the power plants appeared to be an effort to paralyze the two largest North Vietnamese cities. Air Force generals have characterized these targets as the vitals of North Vietnam.

Nearly a dozen railroad yards were attacked, many of them on the north-west and northeast rail line connecting

Howard Hughes flees to Britain after quake

LONDON (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes landed in Britain early today and immediately vanished, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Hughes had been driven from his luxurious hotel refuge in Nicaragua by last week's devastating earthquake.

The 66-year-old American tycoon arrived without a passport but was rushed through immigration controls at the request of American authorities, official sources said.

He landed at London's Gatwick Airport shortly after midnight, arriving in one of his own 10-seater Lockheed Jetstar executive planes. A convoy of limousines met the plane and took the arrivals away.

Hughes in recent months had been living in a hotel in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, but reportedly fled from there after the earthquake that shattered the city early last Saturday.

The Miami News reported on Tuesday that the 66-year-old recluse flew to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in one of his private jets Sunday. This report said Hughes and his party apparently flew on to some place in the United States because a foreign flight plan was not filed for the aircraft.

A Hughes spokesman in Los Angeles said he knew nothing about Hughes being in London. But the spokesman added that there was nothing unusual about one of the billionaire's planes landing in England since he has business interests there.

En route to London, the small jet refueled at Shannon, Ireland. An official there said the plane came from Gander, Newfoundland.

BY CAPPY DICK

Five boys and girls who are readers of this column are going to become winners of Hocus Pocus Magic outfits for sending in the neatest and is a colorful plastic disk two and five-eighths inches in diameter with a big, smiling face on it. Attached to the disk is a key chain

Ten of these Happy Face key holders will be awarded, one for each of the 10 neatest and most original contest entries received from boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. These winning entries will be reconsidered by the contest judges when they examine similar local winning entries from all other cities where this column is published. From among these qualified entries the five neatest and most original of all will be selected as national prize winners

After clipping out the five pieces in the drawing, paste them together on paper to make a complete figure. Beneath it print your name, age, address and Zip Code number. Decorate the entry with paints, crayons or cutouts, making it as original in appearance as possible

Finally address the entry to Cappy Dick's Midweek Hocus Pocus Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the winners will be published here and there prizes will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none returned.

Cut and paste

most original entries for today's cut-and-paste puzzle contest

The sets of 20 magic tricks, products of the S. S. Adams Company, will be awarded as the national grand prizes. There is enough equipment in each set to enable any boy or girl to stage a complete show for family and friends.

To enter the contest a young reader must cut out the five oddly-shaped pieces in the drawing above and fit them together to make a complete picture which must then be mailed to me.

For an entry to qualify for consideration for one of the five magic outfits it must first win a local prize. In today's contest this award will be a Happy Face key holder. This

Ann Landers

Divorce part of changing world

Dear Ann Landers: I was sorry to hear you say on your NBC radio show that you've changed your views on divorce. Granted, divorce no longer bears the stigma it once did, but such logic could be extended to other wrongs and brutalities so that even murder or child abuse could become so commonplace as to carry very little social stigma.

"What God has joined together let not man put asunder" is a moral precept to which we are still answerable as "Thou shalt not kill" or "Thou shalt not steal!"

I have often applauded your common sense and unyielding observations on marriage and family life and I regret your switch on divorce. Perhaps you'll switch back. Your first book, "Since You Ask Me," is recommended reading to my newlyweds. Thanks for your time, Ann. — Rev. J. Barclay Brown, Mount Hope Lutheran Church, Casper, Wyo.

Dear Reverend Brown: Thank you for your good letter. I am sorry you and I are having a serious disagreement in principle, but the world is changing and those who refuse to reassess the issues will be sadly out of tune with the times.

I no longer believe that marriage means forever no matter how lousy it is — or for "the sake of the children." I see too many people who had a rotten first marriage and are truly happy with a second husband or wife. Our basic disagreement, (yours and mine) lies in the interpretation of "what God has joined together." If God made the selections, it would be simple. But, unfortunately, the selections are made by humans. And humans make mistakes.

My thanks for writing and my best wishes. — Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: What is your opinion of middle-aged women mowing their lawns?

We moved to the suburbs two years ago and two of my neighbors have told me that I am damaging the prestige of the neighborhood because I am out in front like a common laborer. And get this — my husband was informed last week that it looks "low class" to wash his own car in the driveway. The neighbor who told him said, "People who live out here should be able to afford to have their cars washed in a garage."

My husband and I are both puzzled. We don't want to decrease the property values in Highland Park but we do love the exercise and thoroughly enjoy these physical chores.

What is your advice? — Vim and Vigor

Dear V. AND V.: Too bad more suburban dwellers don't mow their own lawns and wash their own cars. They could use a little exercise other than elbow-bending.

What a sad commentary when manual labor is considered "low class." Tell your neighbors you have no plans to hire someone to do for you what you prefer to do for yourselves. Make no apologies whatever.

Dear Ann Landers: Lately you've printed several letters from readers who are concerned about who should give the bride away if her mother has remarried and she has both a natural father and step-father.

The new answer is one you should pass on to your readers. Nobody needs to give the bride away anymore. This is an outmoded custom based on the theory that the girl was the property of her father, and he was handing her over to another male. People are getting more sensible and less bound by convention. I'd like to see this part of the ceremony thrown out by everyone. — On With the New

Dear On: O.K., throw it out of your ceremony, if you want to, but do you mind if a few million people leave it in for the sake of tradition? The wedding ring is a symbol of the leg-iron once applied to prevent the bride from running away. Want to abolish that, too?

Swiss fondue great for skiers, skaters or snowmobilers

A Swiss Fondue is one of the best dishes for an after-ski party or warm-up delights after skating or a trip on a snowmobile. This recipe includes dry white wine to give it an extra pleasant flavor after hours outdoors. If desired, add 1 to 2 tablespoons of kirsch, a liqueur.

SWISS FONDUE

- 1 clove garlic
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 2 cups coarsely shredded Swiss cheese
- 1 tablespoon flour
- Dash salt
- Dash pepper
- Dash nutmeg
- 2 tablespoons kirsch (optional)
- Bread cubes

First, rub earthenware pot with clove garlic; discard garlic. Heat dry white wine in fondue pot or dish; heat just to boiling point. Mix coarsely shredded cheese (it should be natural Swiss, but some people like sharp Cheddar), flour, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add about ¼ cheese mixture to hot wine, stirring carefully and constantly to make smooth sauce. Add remaining cheese, a little at a time, stirring constantly. Add kirsch, if desired; blend well. Heat mixture to boiling point. Serve at once and keep hot over flame. To serve, let each person dip bread cubes into fondue mixture. The bread cubes may be toasted in the oven, or chunks of homemade bread are delicious for dunking.

Jabbar tallies 43 Pistons stop Bucks

DETROIT (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks might prefer never to play the Detroit Pistons again.

The Bucks, leading the National Basketball Association's West Conference Midwest Division by 3½ games, fell to the Pistons Tuesday night, 112-105. The last game the Bucks lost was 2½ weeks ago in Milwaukee, to those same underdog Detroit Pistons.

"That's the Stu Lantz we know and love," said Piston coach Ray Scott after Lantz poured in 37 points to lead all players except for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 43.

"I had the hot hand and the team went to me," said Lantz. "They went to me and that's what made it."

Even though Jabbar hit 21 field goals, the Piston big man, Bob Lanier, said he thought he "played real good defense" against the Bucks' superstar. Lanier was held to 16 points.

The Bucks' biggest lead of the game was 6-2 in the opening minutes. Milwaukee's guiding hand, Oscar Robertson, was sidelined with a shoulder injury, and without him, the Milwaukee club quickly fell behind.

Milwaukee came within two points in the second half, after Lantz was temporarily sidelined following a collision with Terry Driscoll. But Lantz came back and, along with Dave Bing, Jim Davis and Don Adams scored 12 points.

Even so, Milwaukee rallied with eight straight points to take the lead with four minutes left, 101-100. After the lead changed twice more, Detroit went ahead to stay on five points by Lantz.

The Bucks, who have lost only to the Los Angeles Lakers this season as often as they have to the Pistons, will face Detroit again Thursday in Milwaukee.

Preps set for non-loop duels

A precedent-setting Appleton Xavier-at-Kimberly game tops a holiday week of non-conference prep basketball action in the Fox Cities.

Friday's game will mark the first time that Xavier Catholic High School has met a Fox Cities school team. The Hawks have met such other public schools as Kenosha Bradford and Crivitz but never one from this immediate area.

In addition to Kimberly three other members of the Fox Valley Association will see action this week in efforts to keep sharp for the resumption of the title race after New Year's Day. Neenah (5-2) plays host to Racine Case (1-8) Thursday night. Friday, Appleton West entertains Manitowoc, while Appleton East invades Antigo.

The area action starts tonight with the Iola-Scandinavia holiday tournament.

In opening-round games, Marion (0-6) duels Mosinee, which is currently 3-0 in the Lumberjack Conference, at 7 p.m. In the second game, Iola-Scandinavia (2-4) faces Weyauwega (2-6). The championship game will follow the 7 p.m. consolation test Friday.

Kimberly (7-1) comes off a recent 72-61 win over another tough non-loop foe, Shawano. The Papermaker-Xavier battle will be a rare prestige duel between the FVA and the Fox Valley Christian Conference. Kimberly leads the FVA, while Xavier (6-2) ranks second in the FVCC.

Appleton West (6-2) will be coming off a surprising 47-43 loss to Waupaca when it renews an old rivalry with Manitowoc. When the Terrors and the Ships were members of the same conference, their games often decided titles and were among the hardest fought each season. Manitowoc (6-1) recently handed Sheboygan South its first Fox River Valley Conference loss to tie for first place. The Terrors are second in the FVA. A year ago, AHS-W dealt Manitowoc a 66-59 setback.

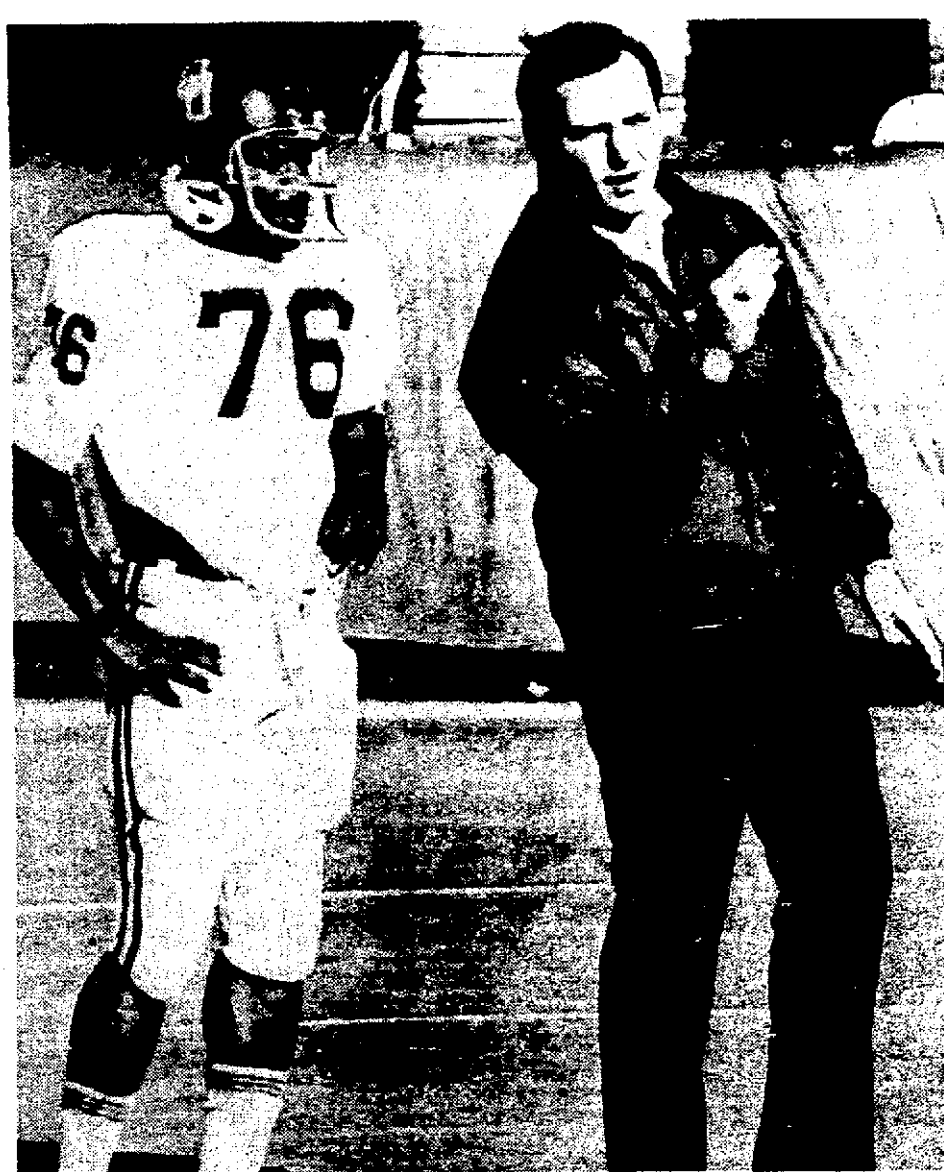

Appleton East (4-3) goes against a new non-league rival, highly-regarded Antigo. The Red Robins have most of their squad back from an 18-6 state tournament team. Thus far, Antigo is 3-2 in the Wisconsin Valley Conference.

Marion came close to posting its first victory before suffering a 55-54 Central Wisconsin Conference setback to Shiocton two weeks ago.

Mosinee has scored 212 points in three conference tests, while limiting its opponent to 137.

The I-S Thunderbirds posted wins over Gresham (61-59) and Tigerton (44-43).

Weyauwega's only East Central Conference victory was a 76-58 verdict over Berlin. The Indians also topped Bonduel (53-51) in a non-league encounter.

Morrall named starter

MIAMI (AP) — Aging Earl Morrall again will start at quarterback for Miami when the Dolphins meet Pittsburgh Sunday for the American Conference championship, but Coach Don Shula is leaving the door open for Bob Griese.

And a member of the Dolphins' offensive line, repeatedly ripped by Cleveland in Miami's 20-14 squeaker over the Browns Saturday, says they'll have to do better against Mean Joe Greene and his compatriots on the Steelers' front four.

"Earl will start in Pittsburgh," Shula said Tuesday. "Each week Griese is getting more and more time to heal and get back in the groove."

The Dolphins coach said he was tempted to replace Morrall with Griese early in the second half but held off when a turnover resulted from Jim Kiick's fumble during a Morrall-led drive.

"It wasn't his fault," Shula said of Morrall.

Morrall directed a comeback from behind 80-yard scoring drive late in the fourth quarter, which included a pin-point 35-yard pass to Paul Warfield and Kiick's slashing eight-yard touchdown run that put the Dolphins ahead.

Fans could be problem

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers Tuesday disputed an opinion by an American Football Conference executive that local fans might pose a security problem for the Miami Dolphins in this week's title game.

The Steelers conceded that hundreds of excited fans did rush onto the field in the waning seconds of last Saturday's thrilling 13-7 win over Oakland.

"But the crowd was good-natured and orderly," said a Steeler spokesman. "The same thing could have happened anywhere under the circumstances. It happened to us earlier this season in Cleveland."

The statement came in response to a New York Times article quoting Val Pinchbeck Jr., AFC executive assistant, as saying, "The fans in Pittsburgh just aren't used to being in the playoffs and they got a little carried away by it."

The story said league officials would supposedly meet Tuesday with Pittsburgh police to discuss security.

However, Pittsburgh Police Supt. Robert Colville said Tuesday afternoon that no meeting had been arranged, adding that private guards were responsible for stadium security.

The Times story mentioned a Friday night incident in Pittsburgh in which an Oakland player, reserve tight end Bob Moore, was clubbed on the head, allegedly by a policeman.

But Griese, out since early in the season when he broke a leg, is in good shape and ready to play if needed in the Pittsburgh game. The winner meets the victor of the Washington-Dallas game for the National Football League championship.

Dolphins offensive lineman Bob Kuechenburg said "we'll definitely have to play better for Pittsburgh than we did against Cleveland. We didn't execute well. It wasn't one of my better days."

A Browns defender didn't think much of Morrall's protection, either. "If they play like that," said Browns tackle Walter Johnson, "the Steelers will murder 'em."

"We're just going to have to control the line of scrimmage," said Kuechenburg, a left guard. "You're not going to win many ball games if you don't."

Shula said the Dolphins probably will leave for Pittsburgh late Friday morning to allow the Dolphins two days of work on the artificial turf of Three Rivers Stadium.

Redskins expect to see Staubach

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins expect Roger Staubach to be in the starting lineup when they take on the Dallas Cowboys Sunday for the National Football Conference championship.

"But no matter who plays, we'll be ready," Redskins Coach George Allen said Tuesday.

Cowboy Coach Tom Landry usually announces such decisions on Wednesday, although he said Tuesday he wasn't certain when he would make the choice between Staubach and Craig Morton.

"We'll go with the quarterback who we think can win for us," Landry said.

The Redskins took to the practice field Tuesday for the first time since defeating the Green Bay Packers in opening round of the National Football League playoffs last Sunday. In that game, they stopped the Packers' bruising ground attack by stacking five defenders on the line.

"That was last week and that is in the past," defensive end Verlon Biggs said. "You can't expect something like a five-man line to throw Dallas off—they're good."

"Dallas has perhaps as good a running attack as Green Bay, but they also have a devastating passing attack."

Coach Allen agreed that the five-man line, with defensive tackle Manny Sistrunk playing on the nose of the opposing center, won't be used against the Cowboys.

"We'll play them pretty much like we have in the past," Allen said. "And I anticipate them doing the same."

Allen sent his warriors through a spirited two-hour practice that ended in a light drizzle. It was not one of the Redskins' better sessions.

"We didn't have as good a practice as we did last Tuesday," the Washington coach said. "We made some mistakes and we didn't have the concentration, but we still had a pretty good practice."

Guard John Wilbur, who missed practice and the game last week with a kidney injury, worked out Tuesday and may be activated for the Cowboys' clash.

The only Redskins absent from the drill were tackles Terry Hermeling, out with the flu, and Jim Snowden, whose mother died.

Washington is rated a three-point favorite over the team they defeated earlier this season 24-20 at Washington. The Cowboys won the rematch 32-24 at Dallas three weeks ago.

Turnabout in Packer attitude pleases Dan

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — All was outwardly quiet on Lombardi Avenue.

One Packer or another strolled into the dressing room, virtually deserted now, to leisurely clean out his locker and officially write finis to the 1972 season Tuesday.

G. B. (Dad) Braisher, the venerable equipment manager, was seated at a table in the heart of those quarters, making a list of autographs still missing from the Central Division champions' souvenir footballs, anxiously awaited by adoring fans.

Every minute or so, Braisher would interrupt his task and break the general silence with a wistful lamentation about what might have been in Washington Sunday afternoon. Dad, once a coach himself, is a hard loser.

Upstairs, however, the pace quickened perceptibly. Coach Dan Devine, architect of the Packers' dramatic turnaround, was beginning a long day by huddling with his assistants — those who had not already hit the trail for bowl scouting assignments.

To follow were conferences with seven or eight players, most of whom were en route to their off-season homes. Devine, still painfully replaying Sunday's 16-3 playoff loss to the Redskins in his mind's eye as well as on film, found these conversations heartening in the extreme.

"It's up to each individual fan and to the writers to determine what kind of football team we had," he said, "but the players feel good about it. Jim Hill was just in and he said he couldn't wait until next year. That's a good feeling."

"We had some guys last year who were just damned glad to be taken out of our final game against Miami, so they could get on their way home. This year there's been a real reluctance to break it off. The complete turnaround in attitude from a year ago is really amazing."

And what, he was asked, had the '72 season told him about the Packers artistically?

"A long way"

"That we've come a long way," he said. "That may be old hat by now, but that's my central impression."

"I think we've made some significant strides but, as I said in training camp, we're not nearly where I'd like to be personnel-wise or technically."

"But if you keep improving, you ultimately get where you want to be. That's two steps further than we got this year."

Devine found himself not ready to discuss, in specific terms, what is needed to make a good team better.

"To be honest, I'm not in a psychological makeup at this time to sit back and look at what our needs are. I'm still too wrapped up in last Sunday's game right now."

Asked if Sunday's swan song had helped him evaluate the quarterback situation, Devine replied, "I would have to say the season did."

"I think all of us, fans and coaches alike, are inclined to blame all ills — the deficiencies in special teams and defensive play as well as on offense — on the offensive quarterback," he said in obvious defense of Scott Hunter, who has borne the brunt of the faithful's criticism for Sunday's defeat.

"He even becomes responsible," Devine said with a chuckle, "for the equipment manager not having an extra chin strap out on the field."

DD made no further comment on the criticism, some of which was erroneous. One newspaper analysis attributed Hunter's passing problems to his inexperience. They were, of course, clearly mechanical, although he has continued to insist that his arm is sound.

Looking to his next major project, Devine said he was prepared to discuss the draft only in general at this point. But he did say, "We'll be drafting too late (not below 19th because of being a playoff qualifier), we may just go for the best athlete available."

"We've made some mistakes in the draft, and I know where they are. We're going to do a better job this year. I've only been in the league two years and I'm not an expert on anything, but I think we're in a position to do a better job this year than we were in my first two."

Can't look down

"What I'm saying is that when you think Larry Brown was an eighth round draft choice, you can't afford to look down on an eighth round choice. And that means you have to have a thorough knowledge of what is available."

"Our coaches, of course, are much more involved in the draft than those on some other teams are. Two of our assistants went out yesterday to scout bowl games and three more left today. I'll do more scouting, too — I'll probably catch at least one bowl game."

Is he likely to be active in the trade market?

"We're not going around shopping people, no," Devine rejoined. "But we're not standing still either. In fact, I talked to the general manager of one club for between 45 minutes and an

Cavaliers end Atlanta win streak

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Pistons and Cleveland Cavaliers aren't going anywhere in the National Basketball Association and they're doing their best to bring the Milwaukee Bucks and Atlanta Hawks down to their level.

With Stu Lantz scoring eight of his 37 points in the closing minutes Tuesday night, the Pistons, cellar-dwellers in the Midwest Division, beat first-place Milwaukee for the second time in a row 112-105, the first time they've managed that feat since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar joined the Bucks in 1969-70.

Meanwhile, the Cavaliers, with one of the worst records in the league, snapped Atlanta's five-game winning streak, beating the Hawks for the second time in three meetings 115-96 and knocking them out of a virtual tie with Baltimore for first place in the Central Division.

Elsewhere, Boston turned back New York 115-106, Baltimore trounced Buffalo 121-104, Chicago whipped Kansas City/Omaha 117-103, Houston shaded Phoenix 113-110, Los Angeles crushed Portland 116-92 and Seattle edged Golden State 97-95.

American Basketball Association scores: Dallas 131, Virginia 126; Kentucky 129, Indiana 120; Utah 119, Memphis 112, Denver 103, San Diego 101.

Cleveland, which had lost its last nine games, outrebounded the Hawks 65-41 while the Cleveland backcourt duo of Austin Carr and Lenny Wilkens combined for 50 points, 26 for Carr. Lou Hudson led the Hawks with 27.

Dave Cowens scored 39 points and John Havlicek 31 in Boston's win over New York, which boosted the Celtics' Atlantic Division lead over the Knicks

Former Giant star Jimmy Patton killed

VILLA RICA, Ga. (AP) — Former New York Giants defensive football star Jimmy Patton was killed in a traffic accident last week, the Georgia State Patrol reported Tuesday.

The patrol said Patton was killed Friday three miles west of Villa Rica when he attempted to pass another car on heavily-traveled U.S. 78. He was struck by an oncoming vehicle.

He was alone in his car, the patrol said.

The driver of the other car, identified as Charles Guzzetti of Atlanta, and a passenger were critically injured.

Kroll says Packers may have reached peak in 2nd Viking game

Post-Crescent News Service

Shakespeare may have said it first and more lyrically, but no more succinctly than venerable Ray Nitschke. He put the Packers' playoff misadventure in perspective by sagely observing, "I think you learn from adversity."

Rookie Bob Kroll, a home grown free agent who clawed his way onto the regular roster, has come to the same conclusion in appraising that 16-3 loss to the Redskins from the other end of a career.

"It would have been great to get to the Super Bowl," said the ex-Green Bay Preble star, "but like everybody else on the team, now I know what it takes to get there. Now I know what it takes to get past the playoffs."

"I think what happened Sunday will prepare the team better next year — to know what we have to do to go all the way. I think that's just part of experience, because we are a young team."

"It's hard for me to say too much because I haven't been around that long, but it almost could have been we reached our peak at Minnesota when we clinched the Central Division championship. It seems to me, looking back, that it should have been our plateau and we should have been ready to climb higher. But I suppose that, again, is something you can trace to our lack of experience."

"After the Minnesota game, we probably should have tightened our belts and said, 'Now the fight begins.' The toughest road was ahead then."

Despite the Packers' general inexperience, Kroll is convinced things would have been different had Sunday's game been played in Green Bay's Lambeau Field.

"We were in a lion's den — in hostile country," he said. "There's no way they could have beaten us in Green Bay. It's always good to play at home."

Though he can't help but be wistful when he thinks of the Super Bowl, Kroll freely admits he found his freshman pro season rewarding beyond his most extravagant dreams.

"When I think back to April and our first rookie camp in Arizona, it's kind of hard to believe," he fondly confided. "I don't think I ever sat down and consciously thought about playing for the Packers when I was going to high school, but there was always a subconscious drive all along to play here."

"I just wish I could have helped the team more, contributed more. I also know that next year I'm going to have to come back in with the attitude that I'm still a rookie, except that now I know what's going on."

"Really not established"

"I'm really not established," said the former Northern Michigan University athlete, whose kamikaze approach on kickoff coverage helped key the Packers' important 33-7 victory over the Lions earlier this month. "They can pick up gargabemen like me anywhere for special teams."

"I've got to establish myself as a defensive back next season. I've got to concentrate more."

He quietly assured, however, that he has no negative feelings about his prospects. "I have all the confidence in the world I can play strong safety in this league," the darkly handsome defender said.

"Right now, though, I just have skeletal view of all the defenses. I still need to know where you can make the adjustment, what to expect from every set they give you. Everything comes with experience."

"If your first key doesn't tell me, then I have to pick up my secondary key. It all has to be done in a split second — you have to decide whether you should commit yourself. But it all comes with polish and experience."

"As I said, I'm sure I can play in the NFL and I hope I can play here. We have one of the best secondaries in the league, so it's hard to break in. But, on the other hand, that's good. I can learn a lot from those guys."

Looking to 1973, he optimistically observed, "I don't see any reason why we can't go all the way. I don't think anything will stop us next year. I think Green Bay will be in the playoffs for a long time. It looks to me like another Packer dynasty. I think it's just beginning."

Third place and championship matches will be played at the same times Friday night. Roncalli is defending champion.

Browns rehire Skorich

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns have rehired head Coach Nick Skorich with a three-year contract extending through the 1975 football season.

"I expect the entire staff to be back, and we can concentrate on getting the job done," Skorich said Tuesday. "Having a contract of this length is helpful in dealing with players."

"I'm very happy with both the financial arrangements and the length of the contract."

Skorich, an assistant Browns coach since 1964, was named head coach in 1971 after Blanton Collier retired. In two seasons, he has stretched his record to 19 victories and nine defeats.

During his professional football career, he played as a guard for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Skorich spearheaded the Brown's metamorphosis this year from a near-patsy to a title contender. After losing six straight exhibition games and three out of five regular season games, the Browns roared back with a six-game winning streak, finishing with a 10-4 record for the season.

The Browns took the National Football Conference "wild card" berth, but the team lost its playoff match with the Miami Dolphins last weekend, 20-14.

State DNR advised to tighten its belt in lengthy auditor report

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The handling of transportation allowances, staff airplanes and vehicles, sizable public relations contracts and "temporary" staff appointments by the Department of Natural Resources has been criticized in an extensive report by the state auditor.

Auditor Robert Ringwood reported that the state agency should sell one of its airplanes used mainly for staff transportation, reconsider its policies on granting state cars to agency personnel, revise its personnel policies which have kept some staff members in "temporary" positions for periods up to four years, and criticized the banding of an unwritten contract totaling $200,000 to a private public relations firm.

Ringwood reported, however, that the DNR was moving in some of the areas to correct the problems his staff had pointed out as the result of a regular audit of agency operations.

Ringwood's unit told the governor and legislature that the DNR should act promptly to clarify the status of personnel who have served in "acting" appointments for long periods, as well to establish policies requiring agency staff members to move the location of new jobs within a specified period following their appointment.

The audit reported that there are currently 19 staff members in the DNR serving in "acting" positions, 15 of them on the supervisory level.

Those appointments have been held for periods ranging from 10 months to four years, reported Ringwood.

"We believe the department should be able to determine the permanent assignment of these employees in less than four years' time," commented Ringwood.

"Additional costs are incurred by the department to pay daily expenses incurred in traveling from previously established headquarters to new temporary assignments."

Ringwood said that the DNR should establish policies requiring transferred personnel to move to the location of their new assignments within specified periods of time. Additional travel costs are created and work time lost if such a policy is not in effect, he said.

"We noted one employee who continued to live in Oshkosh for a year after his promotion and permanent assignment to Madison, traveling between Oshkosh and Madison three and four times a week," said Ringwood.

The DNR has a twin engine, five passenger plane in its aerial fleet which cost $97,000, is used for DNR administrative travel, and is flown on the average of only about 15 hours per month, said Ringwood. The agency should dispose of it, he said.

The auditors also examined the use of state cars by DNR employees.

Records of 14 cars assigned administrators indicate that the vehicles, allocated full time to the state workers, are used on state business for 10,000 miles or less of travel per year. The Department of Administration recommends that no state car be assigned full time to a state worker unless it will be used for 13,000 miles or more of travel per year tied to state business.

Ringwood also suggested that the state agency take over the issuance of all fish and game licenses sold in the state, 75 per cent of which are now sold by county clerks and their deputies.

The local officials are compensated for the work out of a share of the license costs, and Ringwood said that the program costs the state more than $500,000 per year.

The DNR could provide the service on the local level at a lower cost, resulting in savings to the taxpayers, he said.

Most of the recommendations in the regular audit, performed as a part of an on-going program that reviews the workings of all state agencies on a periodic basis, dealt with administrative matters within the agency.

Ringwood was critical of the granting of a $200,000 contract on the basis of an "understanding" with a public relations agency, but noted that the DNR is working to confirm the relationship in writing and will present it to the governor for his approval, as all state contracts are to be handled.

Czech skaters edge U.S.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The Czechoslovakia national champion hockey team, fresh from a razor-thin victory over the United States, moved into the second game of the round-robin World Cup championship tonight with a match against the Canadian squad.

Czechoslovakia, represented by its Army team known as Dukla Jihlava, scored on a screened power play goal in the third period to edge the United States team 3-2 Tuesday night to move into the second round of the tournament.

It will be the first game for Canada, represented by the Medicine Hat, Alta., team in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, with a number of other players added to bolster the attack.

Russia, the fourth team in the tour-namment, and the defending champion, opens play Saturday against the Czechs. After that game, the action will shift from Colorado Springs to Bloomington, Minn., where the Russians play Canada Saturday night. The U.S. team meets Canada Dec. 31 and closes tournament play Jan. 2 against the Russians.

In Tuesday night's game, Czechoslovakia scored first when Jaroslav Holik slapped in a rebound on a power play situation at 15:34. The United States tied the game a minute later when Bob Young deflected the puck into the net off a Czech defenseman.

Czechoslovakia opened scoring in the second period when Pavel Veranek took a headman pass from Jiri Titz and cruised in with the puck. Chuck Ness tied the game again, in the second period, when he hammered the puck off a Czech blue liner.

Then, 11:53 into the final period, the Czechs scored the winning goal when defenseman Peter Adamik, screened by two teammates, shot from the blue line and the puck slid under U.S. goalie Dick Perkins of Wisconsin.

Perkins played a fine game, withstanding a steady barrage of 46 shots, 15 in the opening period, 20 in the second period, and 14 in the final period.

Czechoslovakia's goalie, Miroslav Krasa, stopped 26 United States shots, several of them at point-blank range.

Temper flared in the second period, and Holik drew boos from the audience of 5,000 when he drew three penalties in the period.

The U.S. team is coached by Bob Johnson, hockey coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Sees emotional game Lilly healthy again

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Lilly said it softly, like he was trying to keep from being overheard by The Football Injury Gods: "There's a chance I might go into this game healthier than I've been all season."

Coming from a man whose left leg was paralyzed with pain only three days ago, it was like he had been made witness to a miracle.

Lilly, the great defensive tackle of the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys, took himself out of the first quarter of Saturday's National Football League playoff with San Francisco.

"I could have played but I wouldn't have been any good," Lilly said today. "I thought it was better for the team if Bill Gregory played."

With the countdown for Sunday's National Conference title game with Washington approaching, Lilly's painful back spasms have gone away.

"I'm standing up straight...walking without pain...I haven't had a muscle spasm in two days," Lilly said. "If my back continues to improve, I could be stronger than at any time all year."

Lilly said "It feels good not to go into a game all beat up. My knee doesn't hurt. My foot doesn't hurt. My back is a little sore but right now I could play with it."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Lilly is the key to the Cowboy defense. He gives the World Champions a strong pass rush and is excellent against the run.

Lilly realizes if he plays Washington will probably pick on him.

"They've done that before even when I was healthy," Lilly said. "They like to run plays at me or take advantage of me doing around blocks and having their backs hit the hole quick."

Lilly said Redskin Coach George Allen was correct when he predicted

"an emotional struggle."

But right now Lilly is taking it easy. He goes to team meetings and takes whirlpool baths then goes back to his apartment to cook steaks.

Wolverines reach semi-finals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Michigan Wolverines are in a field of 10 Holiday Festival basketball teams, but seemingly in a class all by themselves.

"Their starting team is as good as any starting unit in the country," says Boston College Coach Bob Zuffelato. "It's going to take a great effort to beat them in this tourney."

The Wolverines displayed some of that strength and practically ran Boston College out of Madison Square Garden with an 88-70 victory Tuesday night.

With their success in Tuesday night's quarterfinals, the Big Ten club raced into the semifinals of this 21st annual event. They'll play Thursday night against the winner of today's St. John's-Tennessee game.

South Carolina, another of the leading teams in the Holiday Festival, also earned a semifinal berth with a 80-64 triumph over Villanova Tuesday night. The Gamecocks will be matched in Thursday night's other semifinal game against the winner of today's contest between Niagara and Manhattan.

Because of the enlarged field this year, some teams were forced to play extra games Tuesday afternoon. St. John's made today's quarterfinals by bombing Grambling 112-86 and Manhattan beat North Carolina A&T 73-61.

The Wolverines, with Campy Russell scoring 20 points and Henry Wilmore adding 12, rolled to a 47-30 halftime lead. Wilmore finished with 31 points. Russell had 29.

Dave Walker scored 20 points and Mark Raterink contributed 17 and 12 rebounds to the Boston attack.

In Tuesday night's second game, South Carolina's Alexander English, who scored 23 points and collected 13 rebounds, was one of the key rookies for the Gamecocks, who had as many as three freshman on the floor at the same time. Tom Inglesby paced Villanova with 22.

Bill Schaeffer scored 40 points to lead St. John's while Mike Moore was Manhattan's big gun with 19.

Elsewhere Tuesday, Rutgers edged Florida 81-79 in overtime and Jacksonville downed Miami, Ohio 66-59 in the opening round of the Gator Bowl tourney at Jacksonville, Fla.

In other major games, Memphis State routed Cornell 90-64 and Wisconsin-Milwaukee beat Long Island University 80-69.

Rutgers earned the right to meet Jacksonville for the Gator Bowl title tonight, nipping Florida on Steve DiPieri's rebound basket with eight seconds remaining in overtime. John Somogyi led Rutgers with 25 points, while Florida's Tony Miller took game scoring honors with 31 points.

Butch Taylor paced Jacksonville's victory with 20 points. Phil Lumpkin topped Miami, Ohio with 14 points.

West JVs win

The Appleton West junior varsity basketball team recently boosted its record to 6-2 with an 81-34 victory over the Waupaca JVs.

West jumped off to a 22-2 lead and was ahead, 44-10, at halftime. Greg Reitzner's 19 points led the way, as 11 different West players scored. Gary Belling tallied 10.

Revenue sharing helps 59 counties cut taxes

MADISON — A record number of Wisconsin's 72 counties — 59 — reported county purpose property levy cuts for 1973, largely because they had federal revenue sharing money to apply to their budgets but also because their financial conditions were bolstered by two successive years of record levy increases, the Public Expenditure Survey of Wisconsin said today on the basis of a poll of county clerks.

Total levies dropped from $272,067,291 last year to $248,934,639, a decline of $23,132,652, which is more than accounted for by the total $42,353,-205 clerks reported as expected federal revenue sharing money applied to 1973 budgets.

The cut was some 11.8 per cent. Without the federal revenue sharing applied the levy total is up 7 per cent, one of the lowest increase rates in recent years, according to the Survey.

The Survey is a private nonprofit government research and service agency for state-wide and community taxpayer organizations.

Ten counties reported using none of the expected federal money for the 1973 budget and four of these 10, Bayfield, Manitowoc, Richland, and Vernon, had lower levies.

Another seven counties reduced their levies by more than the amount of federal money applied. These were Dane, Eau Claire, Forence, Kewaunee, Menominee, Ozaukee, and Sheboygan counties.

Ten of the counties with levy increases held in reserve substantially more than the amounts of the increases, the survey said. Counties with levy increases having in the neighborhood of $1 million in federal money held back, on the basis of October estimates of what would be available, were Dodge, Outagamie, Walworth, and Winnebago. Monroe and Jefferson counties had over half a million in reserve on the same basis. Adams, Green, Pierce, and Waushara counties also were expected to get substantially more in federal shares of 1972 and 1973 than the amounts of their levy increase.

The survey's figures for the four area counties show:

Outagamie's levy in 1971 was $5,222,299 and this year $5,603,776, an increase of $381,477. Federal revenue budgeted was $195,000.

Winnebago's 1971 levy $6,025,430, compared to this year's $6,375,090, an increase of $349,660. Federal revenue was not listed.

Calumet's 1971 levy $1,240,808, compared to this year's $1,063,998, a decrease of $176,810. Federal revenue is $268,462.

Waupaca's 1971 levy $1,942,936, compared to this year's $1,667,726, a decrease of $275,210. Federal revenue is $764,501.

Buying guide views life insurance costs

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON—Herbert Denenberg has done it again. And anyone who buys life insurance may be able to save substantial sums as a result.

The controversial state insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania has published the most revealing booklet about life insurance costs ever published in this country. Its title: "A Shopper's Guide to Term Life Insurance."

It compares costs of so-called "term" life insurance policies for all of the largest companies doing business in that state. All but a few of these firms operate in other states with the same rates used in Pennsylvania.

The difference in costs per thousand dollars of insurance between the lowest and highest cost policies is 140 per cent. "This means," says Denenberg, "that a buyer can obtain accumulated savings of up to $6,000 over a 20-year period by purchasing the lowest-cost of the $25,000 term policies listed in the guide."

Last April, Denenberg released a similar study of "cash value" life insurance which is sometimes called "straight" or "ordinary" life insurance. Costs ranged even more widely, with the most expensive policy 170 per cent above the least expensive.

Term life insurance gets its name from the fact that it is sold for a specified period of time, usually five years, with an option to renew at a higher rate, depending on the age of the policyholder.

Like fire insurance, term life insurance simply provides protection against loss. No cash value builds up, though some policies provide "dividends" which serve to reduce the net cost. Buyers pay only for the cost of protection, plus a margin for company profit.

Y activities start Jan. 9

Activities for all age groups will be offered beginning the week of Jan. 9 at the Appleton YMCA.

Schedules have been announced for judo instruction, adult yoga course, couples volleyball and the tiny tot fitness program.

Judo will be offered from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning Jan. 10. The 10-week course is for junior high and high school students and adults. The fee is $7.50 for members and $12.50 for nonmembers.

The yoga course is open to men and women. The 10-week program will have two classes for beginners (from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. Fridays) and two for continuing pupils (from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays and 9:15 to 10:15 a.m. Fridays). It will begin Jan. 9. The fee is $7.50 for members; $12.50 for basic members and $17.50 for nonmembers.

The couples volleyball program will run for 10 weeks from 8:15 to 9:45 p.m. Fridays, beginning Jan. 12. There is no charge for members and $20 per couple for nonmembers.

The tiny tot fitness course is for children between 3 and 5. It is offered at 9:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning Jan. 9. The fee for the five-week course is $5 for members; $7 for basic members and $10 for nonmembers.

Registrations for all of the courses are accepted by phone by the physical education department of the YMCA.

Courts

James H. Saari, 48, Rothschild, was charged with five counts of cashing worthless checks and with one count of absconding, when he appeared Tuesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Saari is charged with cashing five checks, valued together at $110, at various Appleton businesses between Feb. 25 and March 11, and with absconding from a $40 bill at the Snug Inn Motel, State 47, Appleton, on March 8. Schaefer set bond at $1,500 and continued the case to Thursday.

Brett A. Knops, 19, St. Paul, Minn., was charged with one count each of theft and contributing to the delinquency of a minor when he appeared Tuesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Knops is charged with taking 12 quarts of liquor from the Last Chance Tavern, Shiocton, and with allowing a 17-year-old rural Appleton boy to use his Minnesota identification card to enter several other taverns. Both offenses reportedly took place on Saturday.

Schaefer continued the matter to Thursday.

Larry G. Kline, 23, Newton, was charged with cashing a $20 worthless check at Prange's on May 17, when he appeared Tuesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. Schaefer continued the case to Jan. 5.

State to study use of employee compensation

MADISON — The state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations will attempt to find out how many persons who have exhausted their unemployment benefits later apply for welfare.

The federally financed study will begin early next year, the agency said, and will require interviews with an estimated 4,000 persons over the next 18 months.

The department said the purpose of the study was to determine the adequacy of the unemployment compensation program and to provide additional information about the validity of current unemployment estimates.

Wisconsin is one of four states participating in the research project at the request of the U. S. Department of Labor.

About 1,400 persons a month now are exhausting their benefits under the Wisconsin unemployment compensation law, the agency said. The study will attempt to find out how many of those drawing all of their benefits are able to find jobs and how many remain unemployed, drop out of the work force, or apply for public assistance.

At present, claimants under the Wisconsin law may draw benefits for up to 34 weeks, depending on the length of their employment in the last 12 months.

Hartley J. (Jim) Jackson, director of the agency's research and statistics bureau, noted that the unemployment law has two purposes — to replace a portion of lost wages of those who become unemployed through no fault of their own, and to sustain society's purchasing power during recessionary periods.

Post offices to close Thursday

Post offices in the Valley will be closed on Thursday, a national day of mourning declared by President Nixon in honor of the late, former President Harry S. Truman.

Appleton Postmaster Francis Sumnicht reported, however, that a call window will be open at the main office between 8 and 10 a.m., for box holders and that special delivery service will be provided. There will be no city or rural deliveries.

The lobby of the main office will be open for stamp vending and mail deposit slots, and contracting postal stations will remain open, he said.

Postmasters throughout the country have been directed to implement their regular holiday schedule on Thursday.

Truman decisions shaped history Targets of bomb raids revealed

Harry S. Truman, responding to frightening emergencies in the early days of the era of confrontation, made six major foreign policy decisions that shaped world history.

Five of the decisions — the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, the Berlin Airlift, the support of Yugoslavia against Moscow and the formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — sustained a Western Europe pros- trated by World War II and threatened by Joseph Stalin's appetite for political conquest.

The sixth had an incalculable impact on Asia and was a prelude to years of agonizing U.S. experience there. It was the decision to intervene on the side of South Korea against the Soviet-backed invasion by the North Korean Com- munists in 1950.

"When President Truman made a decision, he moved fast," one of his secretaries of state, the late Dean Acheson, said.

The president moved fast in the postwar years when it became clear that the Soviet Union was establishing an unchallengeable sphere in Eastern Europe, and Moscow seemed intent upon expanding it by an offensive combining subversion and political pressure.

When Stalin aimed this sort of drive at Greece and Turkey, astride the vitally important eastern Mediterranean, the President laid down what became known as the Truman Doctrine. It warned Stalin in early 1947 that the United States "cannot allow changes in the status quo in violation of the Charter of the United Nations by such methods as coercion or by such subter- fuges as political infiltration."

Strongly supported by Congress and accompanied by massive economic aid, the doctrine kept the two pressured nations afloat and gave them time to secure themselves.

As the Russians chipped, piece by piece, at Eastern Europe, setting up one satellite regime after another, the United States turned its worried atten- tion to Western Europe, shattered by more than five years of destructive war and virtually defenseless.

The Marshall Plan, named for Gen. George C. Marshall, then secretary of state, produced an economic miracle, to the often-voiced dismay and anger of Moscow. In a brief period, massive U.S. aid restored Western Europe to economic health and set it on the road to prosperity behind a screen of security implied by U.S. power.

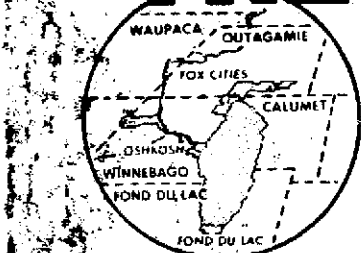

In mid-1947, Stalin expelled Marshal Tito and his Yugoslavs from the com- munity of Communist parties for failure to obey him unquestioningly. Tito was able to withstand Stalin's wrath because of support, both material and implied, from Washington. That also had a decisive effect on the future of Greece. No longer did Communist forces harassing the Greek government have ready refuge across the border in Yugoslavia, and the Red effort there collapsed soon after.

Early in 1948 Stalin directed enor- mous pressure on West Berlin, an allied-occupied enclave 110 miles inside the Soviet occupation zone of Germany. Obviously aiming to secure West Berlin for the Communists, the Russians blockaded all access by land and sea.

The response was swift — a massive airlift unprecedented in history that supplied West Berlin what it needed to survive until Stalin in 1949 conceded

Funeral for Truman to be kept simple

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — For the final time, Harry S. Truman today travels the half mile from his home to the presidential library that bears his name.

When his coffin arrives, in quiet pomp reserved for statesmen, a military band will play "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief" for him for the last time. It was a greeting he heard often in the years 1945 to 1953 when he was President of the United States.

The nation he led from war into the chill of an uneasy peace will have a day of mourning Thursday, the day of the funeral, to commemorate the man whose dearest wish was to be known as "The People's President."

In keeping with Truman's and Mrs. Truman's wishes, the ceremony transferring the body from the funeral home to the library where he will be buried was to be simple. Mrs. Truman, 87, would not participate today, a family spokesman said.

The widow was at home today with her daughter, Margaret, son-in-law Clinton Daniel and their four sons.

Richard M. Nixon, 37th president of the United States and Lyndon B. Johnson, the 36th, were to be at the library today to bid farewell to the 33rd president.

The family spokesman said they would visit Mrs. Truman at home. The President planned to leave Independence immediately afterward, but Johnson may remain for the funeral Thursday.

Truman, a World War I artillery captain, will receive a 21-gun salute when the coffin arrives at the library for 21 hours of lying in state. The salute battery is from Battery D, 1st Battalion of the 129th Field Artillery — the same outfit Truman served.

The family still has not announced the guests invited for the funeral nor the pall bearers, but apparently they will be mostly intimates of the Trumans.

A memorial service is scheduled in Washington's National Cathedral at 11 a.m. Jan. 5 after Congress begins its new session.

Truman's sister, Mary Jane Truman, will not be able to attend his funeral because she is recovering in Research Hospital from a broken hip. She will watch the activities on television.

In a private service today, the grand master and past grand master of the Missouri Masonic lodge, of which Truman was a member, will conduct a brief memorial.

Mrs. Truman had asked that original plans for up to five days of ceremony be shortened.

"We felt unjustified to add to her strain," the family spokesman said. "We wanted to avoid as much strain on her as possible."

He noted that Mrs. Truman had spent 16 hours at the former president's bedside Christmas Day, the day before he died.

Mostly, the honor of paying last respects is reserved for close family and friends and the ordinary people with whom Truman was strongly identified in his 88 years.

Looters hunt treasure in Managua

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the country's strong man, blamed a rash of fires that broke out late Tuesday afternoon on businessmen "trying to get insurance money for their buildings."

"A lot of businessmen had insurance against fire damage but no insurance against earthquake damage," said Somoza as the flames lit the sky over the downtown section.

Others blamed the fires on looters hoping to hide their activities from national guard patrols. And some of the fires were started by demolition teams dismantling shaky structures.

The troops had orders to shoot looters on sight, but only occasional casualties were reported in the confrontations between the troops and those who refused to heed the order for general evacuation of the city.

There also were clashes between groups of survivors combing the ruins for food as well as loot.

"We turn into animals when we get so hungry," said one man as he ran from a pillaged supermarket. "We'll do almost anything to get something to eat."

The latest official estimate of casualties in the quake Saturday was 3,000 to 5,000 dead and up to 20,000 seriously injured.

Rescue workers continued to burn unidentified and unclaimed bodies pulled from under piles of debris. Bodies that weren't burned were buried in common graves.

Vultures circled overhead and often got to the bodies before the burial squads. A stench blanketed the ruins as the lot soon hastened decomposition.

Aid poured in from abroad as many of the survivors began to settle down in villages surrounding the capital. But a number of those who had left the city defied the national guard and returned to try to salvage belongings from what remained of their dwellings.

Roads in and out of the city were jammed. Trucks and cars arrived empty and left with loads of goods pulled from the rubble.

Col. Frank Simons, in charge of the big U.S. relief program, said there was a big shortage of trucks to deliver supplies to emergency food and medical stations.

"Let's face it," he said, "the truck owners would rather drive their families out of town than serve the government. And you can't blame them."

Simons said the three immediate problems were the complete evacuation of the city and the orderly distribution of food and water to survivors.

Drinking water was being distributed at key relief stations, but many of those remaining in the downtown area were drinking untreated water.

The U.S. Agency for International Development said the United States is providing $3 million in relief supplies and other aid.

Somoza has vowed to rebuild the city of 300,000 people on its present site, but one Venezuelan expert said this would be impossible due to the soft subsoil.

"The whole town must be blown up," said Ruben Teresani. "It would save water and get rid of all the dangerous buildings."

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. bombers blasted the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Vietnam with more than 1,400 strikes in the past week and devastated scores of military targets, the U.S. Command reported today.

The Command, breaking its silence on the heaviest air attack of the Vietnam war, reported in a special communique that more than a dozen different types of targets were attacked, including some for the first time in the war.

The report covered the period from Dec. 18 until late Dec. 24, when the bombing over the North was halted for a 36-hour Christmas cease-fire. It was resumed Tuesday afternoon.

The Command also announced the loss of two more planes in the Hanoi-Haiphong blitz, including the 12th B52 bomber it has admitted losing in the attack.

The U.S. communique said:

"Targets struck included railyards, shipyards, command and control facilities, warehouse and trans-shipment points, communications facilities, vehicle repair facilities, power plants, railway bridges, railroad rolling stock, truck parks, MIG bases, air defense radars, and surface-to-air missile and antiaircraft artillery sites."

North Vietnam charges that the American bombers have also devastated scores of populated areas, wiped out entire villages, killed or wounded thousands of civilians and destroyed hospitals, churches and schools.

The U.S. Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps fighter-bombers made more than 1,000 strikes against the Hanoi and Haiphong industrial complex during the seven-day period, and B52 heavy bombers made more than 400 strikes.

The 400 B52 strikes dropped more than 10,000 tons of bombs, the command said, or the equivalent of 2,000 fighterbomber strikes.

The command has announced a total of 20 U.S. planes lost in the air offensive against North Vietnam's heartland, with 75 Americans missing, killed or captured. Hanoi claimed eight more B52s and an F4 fighterbomber shot down Tuesday, for a total of 55 planes, including 18 B52s since the first raid on Dec. 18.

The U.S. Command said the North Vietnamese fired more than 600 surface-to-air missiles during the strikes, the most intense fire American pilots have ever encountered in Indochina.

The command reported one MIG21 downed by an Air Force F4 fighter-bomb near Hanoi but did not say how many other MIGs attacked the American raiders.

The command said pilots reported scores of sustained fires and secondary explosions in attacks on major targets including the Hanoi port facility, the Haiphong fuel depot and the Haiphong shipyard.

Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers dropped laser-guided bombs on Hanoi Radio the official voice of North Vietnam.

Bus rammed, 19 on outing killed

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — A truck loaded with cattle jackknifed on a narrow bridge near here and slammed into a chartered bus carrying a church youth group bound for a holiday ski outing and religious retreat. Authorities said 19 were killed, 16 injured.

The young people were from the Woodlawn Baptist Church in Austin, Tex.

Ambulance driver Harvey Stihm said the bus "was hit hard enough so that the front end was pushed about halfway through the bus like an accordion. It was torn all to pieces."

The bus wrecked Tuesday night was the second of two school buses carrying the youth group.

The driver of the first bus, John Roberts, said that after passing the truck he looked in the rear view mirror and saw the lights of the second bus flash and go out on the bridge.

The accident occurred as two buses carrying a total of about 67 persons crossed the bridge on U.S. 60-84 about 12 miles east of this small eastern New Mexico town. The span is only 25 feet long.

State police said the first bus passed the eastbound cattle truck without incident. The truck then apparently struck the bridge railing and the trailer swung into the path of the second bus.

The buses were heading for Vadito, a New Mexico ski area near a major Baptist assembly site, Glorieta.

Israel drops bombs on bases in Syria

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets crossed the cease-fire line with Syria today to bomb and rocket an Arab guerrilla base, two Syrian army positions and an artillery battery in reprisal for guerrilla attacks, the Israeli military command announced.

The air raids broke a five-week lull on the front along the occupied Golan Heights, where the heaviest fighting since the 1970 cease-fire flared Nov. 21.

The Israeli command said all its planes returned safely.

Damascus Radio said three civilians were killed and two soldiers were wounded.

The targets were all near Nahal Golan, a civilian farming settlement near where the borders of Israel, Lebanon and Syria meet.

The raids were announced minutes after the Israeli command reported that troops in the Golan Heights had discovered seven antitank grenade launchers, two mortar shells primed for firing, a land mine, and tracks leading across the cease-fire line into Syria.

A spokesman said that guerrillas on Tuesday tried to ambush an Israeli patrol near Nahal Golan with grenades fired either by a timing device or by remote control.

Guerrillas also mortared the area on Dec. 15 and planned a sabotage raid with bazookas and mines, the spokesman said.

After the Arab attack on Israel's Olympic team in Munich last summer, Israel proclaimed a new policy of striking hard in retaliation for all guerrilla provocations, even minor incidents.

Jobless rate not reflected in Valley

A spot-check of Fox Cities industry doesn't reflect the trend recently reported by a state agency that manufacturing hiring decreased and layoffs increased from September to October, 1972.

The Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations has reported that fewer factory workers quit their jobs in October, 1972, as manufacturing hiring declined and layoffs increased compared with September, 1972.

The rate of layoffs, although up from September, about matched the level of October, 1971, the department said.

A survey of Fox Cities industry about two months ago indicated that the conditions of the economic crunch — layoffs, shortened work weeks, fewer hours of overtime and reduced production — were disappearing, and that industries, in some cases, were hiring new people.

The spot-check today revealed the industries were continuing this trend, as spokesman generally emphasized that the companies were striving for employment stability. One noted that his company — in contrast to last January's layoff of over 100 manufacturing employees had rehired laidoff employees and might add a few next month.

But the spokesman added that the company is taking a more cautious look at hiring to avoid layoffs during slack periods, a situation many industries found themselves in not long ago.

Another company's spokesman said the firm had added about 15 people the past year, a normal growth, and a reflecting judicious hiring pattern that helped that company avoid layoffs even during the economic downturn.

Fox Cities firms surveyed also noted an insignificant number of persons quitting jobs, undoubtedly because there still aren't a large number of alternative jobs available.

The state department said that October 1972, was the second month in a row the rate at which workers left factory jobs, either voluntarily or involuntarily, exceeded the rate at which others were added.

Statewide, the estimated number of job openings in manufacturing fell by 10 per cent from 2,860 in September to 2,580 in October.

Manufacturers still were seeking almost twice as many workers in October as they did in the same month a year ago when job openings totaled 1,320.

The agency said the number of long term job openings — those unfilled for 30 days or more — remained virtually unchanged between September and October, the latest month for which labor turnover data is available. However, the number still is significantly higher than in October of 1971.

Long-term job openings currently represent about 26 per cent of all manufacturing job openings.

The department's Bureau of Research and Statistics said the quit rate among manufacturing workers had risen slowly from February until July, then nearly tripled between that month and August before declining in September.

The August quit rate of 4.1 for each 100 employees declined to 3.0 in September and to 1.8 in October. That rate, however, exceeded the 1.3 rate recorded in October of 1971.

The agency said the quit rates this year have surpassed those of the comparable months of 1971 in every month thus far this year.

Layoffs, meanwhile, rose from 1.2 for each 100 workers in September to 1.8 in October, making the latest month's rate the second highest of the year. The October, 1971, rate was 1.9.

Total additions (or accessions) to manufacturing payrolls, which include new hires as well as recalls and transfers, dropped from 4.5 workers per 100 in September to 3.8 in October.

The most significant decline occurred in the food and related products industry, the agency said.

The October total accession rate was up substantially from the 2.9 rate recorded a year earlier, and represented the tenth month in a row that accessions outpaced the same months in 1971.

Total October separations, which included both quits and layoffs, amounted to 4.4 workers per 100, down from September's rate of 5.1. The increase in layoffs was more than offset by fewer quits, the agency said.

Farm environmental aid program canceled

A dust-bowl vintage farm conservation program, the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, was canceled Tuesday by the United States Department of Agriculture in an attempt to cut the 1973 federal budget.

The program, funded by Congress at $225.5 million, had been scheduled to operate in 1973 with $140 million released by the Office of the Bureau of the Budget.

Wisconsin would have received $3,614,000 under the program and these funds would largely have been matched by private expenditures for conservation projects, according to state officials.

The brief announcement that canceled REAP also ended a pilot plan of the Water Bank Program, which had been designed to subsidize farmers for keeping wetlands on their farms to provide habitat for migratory waterfowl.

That plan was carried out in Winnebago, Fond du Lac and Dodge counties during 1972. Last year the plan received an estimated $65,000 in Wisconsin. This year each of the test counties had been scheduled to receive $15,000, according to federal officials.

The Rural Environmental Assistance Program was designed to fund animal waste disposal facilities, sod waterways, timber stand improvement, vegetative cover and erosion control structures.

It had been developed from an Agricultural Conservation Program started during the dust-bowl era to provide incentive to farmers to use soil conservation measures, according to officials.

Funding for the program had been sliced previously in the Nixon, Johnson and Kennedy administrations, but never before has the federal agency ordered the program ended.

Rip-rap work for erosion control on the Wolf River had been funded from special REAP funds for several years. The end of the program will mean that no more such funds are available, state officials said.

Study group says mass transit systems must have financial help

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Mass transportation in Wisconsin is on its way downhill and isn't likely to reverse direction on what additional state funds now are available, government funds, the Summer Assessment of Government Agencies (SAGA) team has told Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Lucey's office released a summary Tuesday of the fifth in a series of reports from the 16 young people, better known as Lucey's Raiders, who studied a number of state agencies and programs during the summer.

The report recommends a one cent increase in the Wisconsin gasoline tax, from seven cents to eight cents per gallon, to provide funds for state involvements in the financing and maintenance of mass transit facilities.

It also suggests that the state dip into the Highway Trust Fund for money to fund mass transit planning and to help municipalities qualify for federal transportation grants.

Similar suggestions in the past have drawn the ire of some state officials who feel the trust fund should be used exclusively for projects related to highways.

"Both public officials and private citizens must bury once and for all the idea that mass transit can pay for itself out of fare box revenues," the report to the governor said.

The SAGA team said there are 22 mass transportation systems in Wisconsin, ranging in size from one bus in Ashland to more than 580 buses in Milwaukee.

More than 23 million passengers are served by the systems yearly, the report said, but there has been a constant decline in ridership since World War II with an increase in the use of the private automobile.

The situation has caused many of the bus companies to shut down, the team said.

The group recommended that the legislature pass a bill allowing Milwaukee County to acquire and run the now privately owned Milwaukee and Suburban Transport Co.

It predicted the transport company "will not long continue to run" because it is losing money.

It also said the state Highway Commission should be allowed to spend road maintenance funds on such things as bus lanes, traffic control devices, bus passenger loading areas, terminals and parking facilities to serve urban bus passengers.

Wisconsin's Constitution should be amended, the group said, to allow the state to "appropriate money in the treasury or to be thereafter raised by taxation for the construction, improvement or subsidy of systems of public transportation."

The team said the state Department of Transportation should be reorganized because, it contended, the department was clearly dominated by its Division of Highways and thus works against mass transit.

There are frequent cases in which privately owned systems were being charged prohibitive insurance rates, it said, and asked the state to help control the rates and guarantee the availability of insurance.

It also recommended that the state encourage cities and counties to buy bus systems now in operation, and that it develop management standards to regulate operation of transit systems once they are given state funds.

The governor's office has issued summaries of reports on mass transportation, child welfare policies, youth programs in the Department of Natural Resources, the administration of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and the Community Development Fund in the state Department of Local Affairs and Development.

Lucey's office said the sixth report, a study of state aids to veterans, would be released soon.

Ogdensburg store robbed

OGDENSBURG — The Waupaca County Sheriff's Department is investigating a Sunday night break-in at the Burr Armond General Store here in which $1,120 in cash and checks and miscellaneous items were reported stolen.

The break-in was discovered Monday.

According to Sheriff Loran Frazier, entry was gained by breaking a door leading into the basement and tearing a trap door off its hinges to get into the store itself.

Impact still unknown

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—It will be many months before state government officials are able to assess the impact of studies made this summer by the Summer Assessment of Government Agencies program, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Tuesday.

Lucey said six reports by the team have gone to the Department of Administration and other concerned state agencies for review.

The team, known as Lucey's Raiders, was made up of young people selected by the government from more than 100 applicants and paid a top wage of $2.50 to Managua.

"I got in contact with my people right away, just as soon as I learned of the disaster," he said. "I found that all communications had broken down between Managua and the outlying areas but I got in touch with one of my men through the ham radio and asked him to investigate the situation in Managua."

Later that day he learned that all of his men were safe. Among them are a number from the Valley, all serving as missionaries.

The Capuchin priests from the area, all of whom are located in parishes outside of Managua, are the Rev. Joseph Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wolf, 335 W. Prospect St., Appleton; the Rev. Camillus Doerfler, son of Mrs. Henry Doerfler, 1818 N. Erb St., Appleton and the Rev. David Belongea, son of Mrs. Ella Belongea, 1508 Kenneth Ave., Kaukauna.

Mrs. Belongea has talked to her son twice since the quake and has been informed by him that his mission field in Bluefields has not been affected and that he is safe.

He told her that the tremor could be felt in his home 100 miles from Managua, but that it did little damage.

The other families have not talked to the men in Nicaragua but have been informed via the ham radio that they are safe.

One other priest serving in Bluefields is currently on leave visiting his brother in Appleton. The Rev. Glenn Gessner is staying with his brother, the Rev. Kurt Gessner, retreat master at Monte Alverno.

He said this morning that he is scheduled to leave for Nicaragua in January but may have to return sooner, depending on the need for help in the mission fields.

Kabat learned from one of his men that at least 75 per cent of the buildings in Managua are destroyed. His home, built a little over a year ago, as well as the cathedral, is heavily damaged. Half of the cathedral has fallen in and the walls of his home are cracked.

"I understand that the rest of the houses are in very poor condition and may have to be dynamited for safety reasons. I have already been approached by the Capuchin headquarters about razing of the buildings, but I don't know what to say or do, since I have not seen the condition," Kabat explained.

The principal thing is to decide whether to relocate, just close it down completely and operate out of another mission center, he said.

"The conditions are undoubtedly very bad, but it is difficult to make a judgment from a living room in Kaukauna."

Myse to seek 6-year term on circuit bench

Gordon Myse, an Appleton lawyer who last August was appointed judge of the 10th Judicial Circuit, to succeed retired Judge Andrew W. Parnell, said today that he will seek a full, six-year term in April.

Myse, 37, is the first announced candidate for the circuit bench, but indications are that he is almost certain to did not represent a variety of occupations.

"The change in composition of juries in this county is designed to provide a jury system representative of all segments of the community and thereby assure determinations that are fairly representative of the attitudes of the community," Myse explained.

Myse, along with the three county judges, state judicial officials and interested local individuals and organizations, drafted the plan for Outagamie County's first family court which becomes operational next month. Along with the family court will come a major shift in the workload in two of the county courts.

Myse, his wife, June, and their three children live at 2614 Elmwood Court.

Myse was one of two Appleton attorneys who sought appointment by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to Parnell's circuit bench. The job pays $23,720.

Myse is a native of Outagamie County, graduated from Appleton High School and received a bachelor of arts degree from Beloit College. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan Law School in 1960. He was a law specialist in the Navy before entering private practice in Appleton in 1964.

Although he did a considerable amount of trial work, Myse was best known as a labor law specialist, representing primarily teachers and policemen throughout the Fox Valley.

Myse has served as Outagamie County family court commissioner (part-time) and president of the Community Guidance Center, and now is vice president of the Golden Age Club and director of the Legal Aid Corporation. He also has held offices in the Outagamie County Bar Association.

Myse was a member of the Appleton Plan Commission and was on an ad hoc city committee that studied proposed construction of a central city school.

Myse, his wife, June, and their three children live at 2614 Elmwood Court.

Embarrass to buy rescue service

CLINTONVILLE — City Clerk Lloyd Eggleston has been informed that the Embarrass Village Board has moved to assume liability up to $50 per call for rescue squad and ambulance service within the village until a referendum vote is held in the April election.

Earlier this month, Embarrass had notified Clintonville that it would not subscribe to city rescue squad service after Jan. 1.

After that date, the area rescue squad service no longer will be free. Municipalities subscribing to the service will be charged 12 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation as their fair share of the cost of salaries for the 22-member squad and equipment maintenance. Municipalities were notified in mid-October of the change, according to Eggleston, and they were asked to indicate by Nov. 1 if they wished to continue with the service. He said municipalities could bring the choice before their voters in an April referendum.

In the meantime, the municipalities will be charged $50 per call until the April elections. That figure would be credited to their assessment if the municipalities decided to subscribe to the service.

Under the new plan, each of the 22 squad members would receive $450 per year. An additional $2,000 was added to the budget for equipment maintenance.

All other area municipalities have agreed to go along with the change to be charged $50 per call between Jan. 1 and the April elections.

Clintonville had been providing free rescue squad service for the area for 15 years. The volunteer firemen who man the rescue squad had donated their services.

Voluntary contributions had been made in previous years by a number of the municipalities served.

Ex-Menasha coach sentenced to 4 years

LA CROSSE — A former mathematics teacher and basketball coach at Menasha High School has been sentenced to four years in the Waupun State Prison for the June 29 attempted rape of an 18-year-old La Crosse woman.

Barry Ewald, 41, of Winter, was sentenced Friday by Judge Leonard F. Roraff in La Crosse County Court Branch 2, following Ewald's return last week from 60 days' observation at the Central State Hospital in Waupun.

Ewald, who served as varsity basketball coach at Menasha for six years from 1965-71, had been convicted by a 12-member jury on Sept. 27. He had been charged with attempting to rape the woman in the backyard of her residence about 2 a.m. on June 29.

Following his resignation from Menasha, Ewald moved to Winter, located about 100 miles northeast of Eau Claire, where he served for one year as basketball coach and athletic director.

Mrs. Clifford Vincent, who directs the choruses at the YMCA, will be the instructor.

City tree lights stolen

MARION — The city police department reports that a set of lights was stolen from the community Christmas tree and all remaining light bulbs also were taken. Anyone who knows anything about the incident is urged to report to the local police.

Greenville to submit treatment plant plans

GREENVILLE — The town expects to have the preliminary engineering design plans for its sewage treatment plant and collector system ready to submit to the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) by Jan. 1, 1973, and the final plans a few days after that, James Wunderlich, town chairman, said Tuesday.

That generally would comply with the extended deadline the DNR had given to the town when the original Jan. 1, 1972, deadline was deemed impractical. If federal funds are forthcoming, the new treatment plant conceivably could be built in about a year.

Wunderlich said the town's next move will be to try to obtain federal funds to finance the approximately $1.8 million construction. Also, the town must get approval of the engineering plans from the DNR and Environmental Protection Agency which were prepared by Donohue & Associates, Sheboygan engineering firm.

The town is planning to construct a sewage treatment plant at Evergreen and Greenwood roads and a network of sewers to handle the sewage from primarily the heavily populated portion of the town.

NEW LONDON — Members of the local Chamber of Commerce are being polled on the hiring of a full-time executive secretary for the organization.

Board members agreed at a recent meeting to poll the members and to speak to other local civic groups and citizens to learn their reactions to the proposal.

Harry Emans, who has been executive secretary for 10 years, has announced his retirement effective Jan. 1.

The chamber has 133 members. Local industries pay about $1,000 of the group's $11,000 annual budget. Increased industrial donations and membership payments would give the chamber needed funds to hire a full time director.

Shawano, Waupaca remain undefeated BABA teams

MARION — Shawano and Waupaca Recreation remain the only undefeated teams after Badger Amateur Basketball Association action this past weekend. Shawano won on forfeit when Clintonville failed to show for the game, and Waupaca Recreation defeated the Waupaca Bruins, 88-79. In other weekend action Marion beat Tigerton, 80-78; Manawa edged Rosholt, 68-66; and Weyauwega downed Iola, 89-79.

The Bruins jumped into the lead during the first two periods holding a 49-46 halftime edge before Waupaca Rec took a 66-60 lead going into the final quarter. Bob Austin and Steve Moreland led the winners with 15 and 14 points respectively, while Mick Sannes topped all scorers with 27 points for the Bruins.

Marion led most of the way with a 40-32 lead at halftime, and the team widened the gap to 62-48 going into the final period. Dennis Brandenburg led Marion with 23 points followed by Harold Mavis with 19. Dave Schmidt paced the losers with 28 points, and Charles Harvey added 20.

A last second shot by Dave Rich won the game for Manawa. The score was tied at 66-66 with six seconds remaining, and he made his shot as the buzzer sounded. Rich led Manawa with 17 points. Don Trzebiatowski paced Rosholt with 24 points.

Weyauwega led 46-43 at halftime and Iola led 67-63 after three quarters before Weyauwega pulled ahead in the final period to win. Tom Rohde led the winners with 24 points. Rod Popp led Iola with 30 points.

Games scheduled for this weekend may be changed according to each teams arrangements. Marion (1-3) will play its game tonight at Manawa (2-2) instead of at home this weekend as originally scheduled. Other scheduled games this weekend will have Tigerton (0-3) at Clintonville (3-1), Shawano (4-0) at Weyauwega (3-1), Rosholt (0-4) at Waupaca Recreation (4-0) and Waupaca Bruins (1-2) at Iola (1-3).

When will Congress reform?

In the time between November elections and the convening of the new Congress, there usually is a lot of discussion about what is wrong with the way Congress operates. Then in January, Congress goes back to work under its existing handicaps.

This year, hearings were held by an ad hoc committee headed by Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Republican Sen. Charles MacC. Mathias of Maryland. There were familiar proposals — that something should be done about the stranglehold of the seniority system and that congressional committees should open their meetings and roll calls to the public.

But the hearings concentrated on something which may be far more pressing and immediate, the inability of Congress to keep up with its separate appropriations and tax levying processes. Said Mathias, Congress is a "third or fourth-class power, a separate and thoroughly unequal branch of our national government."

Sen William Brock of Tennessee proposed the creation of a Joint Committee on the Budget, which would develop its own budget including five-year projections and three-year evaluations of on-going programs.

"Under the present hodgepodge approach to spending, there is no way that an individual member of Congress can evaluate the competing demands for the largesse of government," said Brock.

Brock was not over-stating the case. In the past session of Congress, the House approved a plan to give President Nixon power to set a $250 billion ceiling on spending, regardless of what had been appropriated by Congress. The House vote was a confession of an inability to control spending and of an inability to sort out spending priorities within a total budget. The Senate sidetracked the measure, but it was a move based more on presidential year politics than a defending of the constitutional principal that Congress has power over the federal purse.

Some congressmen and senators may not worry much about all this. There is more political mileage in being for individual spending bills without bothering to add a total. But the depth of the problem and what should be the concern of the leadership of both parties was indicated by Congress' near surrender of appropriations power to the President in the past session because it couldn't figure out what else to do.

Something like that which Brock has proposed should become the top objective of congressional reform. Otherwise, there is the chance for Congress to return to being an equal branch of government.

Buckley on marijuana

Just as it had to be a Republican president to take a trip through the Bamboo curtain, it takes a recognized conservative to try to break the nation's preoccupation with marijuana.

William Buckley had done it with an issue of his publication, National Review. And he has managed to bring along at least some of the vocal members of Young Americans for Freedom, a highly conservative organization. As usual, Buckley has used superb logic to make his point.

He doesn't argue that marijuana is harmless but concedes to the scientists their statistics. They are about the same as those for alcohol, he notes, since everyone knows that, whatever the computers say, someone can be "a menace, vehicular or social" with extremely low intake and some "can manage to superintend world wars and compose great speeches — even if not quite adequate peace terms — with great competence" with high percentages.

Instead Buckley puts the smokers of marijuana in the same category as the drinkers of outlawed liquor during prohibition, the "user" of prostitutes, and especially the owner of pornography whom the Supreme Court has held "you can't molest . . . even though you can go after the peddler." He points out that three years after Senator Barry Goldwater proposed the decriminalization of the use of pot by consumers, a New York college youth was sent to Attica for mere possession.

Richard Cowan of the Y.A.F. simply asks, "How do you tell your friends that they have been had?" He goes on to indicate quite thoroughly that the conservative opposition to pot comes because the liberal line is for it rather than through any independent firm philosophy. He also points out that strange addiction among some elements of our society to what he calls "a 'rationalist western' devotion to alcohol and an opposition to eastern mystical (or worse yet, Californian or Canterburyan) modes of thought."

Now if only those liberal advocates of more intelligent laws concerning marijuana don't race for cover because conservatives have espoused their cause maybe someday we'll get some sensible legislation out of all this. Wisconsin is actually ahead of the game since possession of marijuana is only a misdemeanor in this state. Apparently it's just anything to do with sex that panics our legislature.

Female tokenism

Back in the days when women really had to compete against heavy odds in seeking careers controlled by tradition by men, those who made the grade were accordingly recognized for considerable accomplishment, albeit sometimes grudgingly.

Now it's not always so sure.

Just as tokenism has become a part of many fields of employment, in entertainment and even student bodies in the racial area, so it has reached women. Corporations are anxious to have on their boards of directors a member of the female sex and many scrounge around to find one that won't do too much harm rather than the individual, male or female, who would add strength or needed abilities. Very likely in many areas, such as the academic which has received a lot of criticism for sexual discrimination, new positions are offered to the most nearly qualifying woman rather than to the most qualified person.

Such tokenism is not really new. Years ago it was accepted that a graduate of a public high school in a small town in the Middle West stood a better chance of getting into a college like Harvard or Vassar than someone from an Eastern prestige prep school with identical academic, extracurricular and social records because the former were in demand when more homogenous student bodies were sought. Similarly, some colleges had unofficial "quotas" of Jewish youngsters since for one reason or another a relatively high percentage of them ranked high in class standings.

While all such practices discriminate, sometimes in favor of the underprivileged, sometimes the other way around, they can be understood when the aim is to vary associations or to have more population representational make-ups of groups. It can be argued that it is better for university students, for instance, to mix with others of all races, sexes, religions, abilities, interests and even handicaps and failings so as to learn to live and work with all kinds of people.

But excellence in a particular field or personal contributions to the overall special task of an organization or an agency no longer can be cited as the major requirement. Women now may find that often, while they are not refused something because they are female, they may instead receive it for the same reason. The exchange may not always be advantageous to anyone.

Treasury surplus is bothering Lucey

MADISON — The full dimensions of the state treasury surplus of money which chance has given the Lucey administration are not yet generally appreciated.

It appears likely that one reason why the state officials who are smacking their lips figuratively have commented in dribbles rather than in summary form is a fear of igniting the expansionist appetites and the lobbying forces of the big state government establishment.

Gov. Lucey's unprecedented trip to the campus last week to scold, politely but in a calculated way, the Weaver administration of the University of Wisconsin for what he called scare talk to faculty members was richly suggestive.

It might be difficult to reconcile the university's budget appetites if the full impact of the fortuitous state treasury outlook is appreciated by the university political allies who have shown their clout in legislative politics so many times over the years.

Unexpected riches

The governor and his men are clearly worried that the unexpected riches that will be flowing into the state treasury will handicap them in their determination to bring about the most dramatic, even spectacular, program of local property tax relief that any political regime in Madison has ever found it possible to consider as a practical matter.

The special interest lobbies within the state operating budget are formidable, sophisticated, and practices.

It will be more difficult to persuade the hungry spending interests of the need for "austerity" when it is more clearly realized: That Gov. Lucey's treasury will have about $160 million in "new" money as a result of the federal revenue sharing arrangement because there was a "windfall" representing the 1972 receipts that will be added to a similar payment from Washington in 1973; that there will be a surplus of state revenues of more than $100 million; that what is "euphemistically" called "revenue growth" will add about $250 million to the state's receipts for each of the next two years.

The facts are beginning to sink in, however. That was surely the reason for the flat pronouncement of Sen. Raymond Johnson of Eau Claire, the newly chosen Republican majority quarterback in the Senate, that his party will insist upon a "massive" attack on the property tax problem in the new term.

What Johnson was saying was that the Republicans want a share of the property tax relief record and that they intend to hold Lucey to his declared preference for a stabilization of ordinary state program expenditures in order to make possible the property tax cutback that has been talked about so long that average voters dismiss it as more campaign oratory.

Can't be avoided

In the most conservative calculation, the revenue "growth," so-called, can be applied to state spending increases that will come in spite of all that the governor and the legislators of both parties can do. Civil service wage and other benefit increases probably cannot be avoided, as experience shows.

But that would leave a quarter of a billion dollars, perhaps more, that could be dedicated to property tax replacement and an opportunity for acknowledging grievances of hundreds of thousands of sensitive voters that no other generation of statehouse politicians has ever had.

When Sen. Johnson used the word "massive" to describe the potential of property tax cost to property owners, it was deliberate.

It is truly massive. Currently the total of Wisconsin property tax levies is about $1.3 billion. The existing state tax credit reduction of those bills is about 10 per cent. At a conservative calculation, therefore, there is an opportunity for further reduction of at least 10 per cent.

The only question that remains is method, which may not be easily resolved and will be reviewed in another dispatch tomorrow.

Harris pens ode to soda fountain

They ought to make a sad sequel to "The Last Picture Show," and call it "The Last Soda Fountain." For that merry trysting-place of my youth is also melting away into the mists of the past.

By a melancholy coincidence, the same day my column appeared about the decline of ice-cream quality in American life, the county-seat paper in Wisconsin I subscribe to reported the closing of its last home-town drug store soda-fountain.

Here are 6,500 lost souls — and twice as many on Saturdays, when everyone comes in from the country towns — and not a place left to get the banana split, a black cow, or an orange float. This desolate pattern is being repeated in town after town, state after state; while the alcoholics can find two bars in every block, we ice-cream-aholics are driven to those hideously antisepic Dairy Queen spots on the edge of town, where a mechanized milk-and-air concoction passes for refreshment.

It's purely economic, of course. It simply doesn't pay for the average drug-store to "waste" so much space on a soda-fountain, which could otherwise be taken up by items five times as profitable. Since drug-stores began selling everything but auto tires and tractors, the soda-fountain has steadily gone the way of the bison and the great auk.

I wonder if there's some dim correlation — some sinister inverse ratio — between the decline of the soda-fountain and the rise of juvenile delinquency. When I was a kid, "Harold Teen" was the epitome of our social life, and his hang-out, the "Sugar Bowl" was the archetype of a heaven to come later.

Where can a youngster hang out today after school, or on Saturday mornings, with nothing more ominous in front of him than a peach sundae with marshmallow and all the trimmings? By the time you got through one of those, you were too sated to get into any kind of mischief.

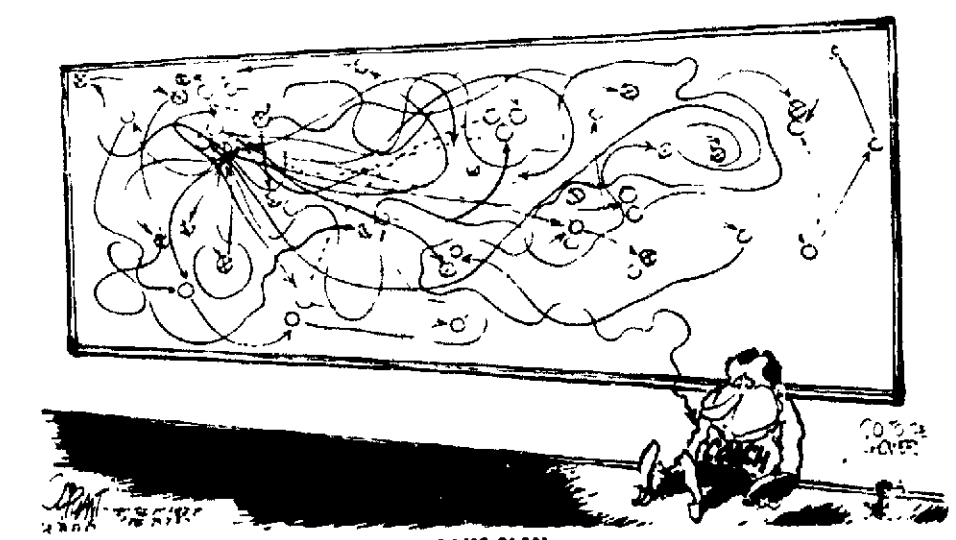

Soda-fountains are "chic" now — tucked away into esoteric little alcoves in Greenwich Village or Old Town, and costing four times as much as my whole weekly allowance used to be. Most kids can't afford them; they are inhabited by wistful and nostalgic middle-aged couples trying vainly to recapture the heady aroma of puberty.

Kids slink off to pot parties now who have never known the sensuous delights of downing an old-fashioned banana split: three scoops, vanilla, chocolate, strawberry; three flavorings, chocolate on the vanilla, cherry on the chocolate, pineapple on the strawberry; chopped nuts, and gobs of real whipped cream, not the junk out of a can.

Never thought I'd live to see the day of the last soda-fountain.

GAME PLAN

Wallace wants '76 nomination

Despite his partial paralysis, Alabama Gov. George Wallace. is already making plans to seek the 1976 Democratic Presidential nomination.

The Governor is operating on the optimistic assumption that by then his health will be dramatically improved. That may or may not be realistic. Currently he is too crippled and too feeble to undertake a national campaign.

The Wallace plans are far enough along to require a Presidential campaign coordinator. Approximately one month ago, during a private dinner party in Montgomery, Wallace offered that post to James Allison Jr., a Washington-based political consultant.

Turns down Wallace Allison had just managed the unsuccessful campaign of Republican Winston Blount against Alabama Democratic Senator John Sparkman. He turned down the Wallace job on the grounds that his firm handles only Republican clients. Allison is a former deputy director of the Republican National Committee.

Wallace apparently thinks he made a mistake not to bring in outside political professionals during his 1972 Presidential campaign. He relied too heavily upon local cronies, and his campaign was haphazard and poorly organized.

Although Wallace won the third-highest number of popular votes in the Democratic primaries, he has relatively few convention delegates because he failed to file proper slates in each state. In some states he filed only partial slates and in others, such as California, he had no delegate candidates at all.

Wallace intends to remain in the Democratic Party and is not considering a third-party race as he made in 1968.

He's for Middle America

Since he was wounded, Wallace has made a considerable effort to remain visible as a national political figure and to participate in the mainstream of the Democratic Party. He encouraged allies to campaign for appointment to the party's new charter commission (and some were). His adviser, Charles Snider, appeared before a regular media breakfast group here and insisted Wallace is "more determined than ever . . . to represent Middle America."

But his injuries are very serious. Friends report that he is in pain a great deal of the time. When he agreed to appear not long ago on NBC's "Meet the Press," the show was allotted three hours for taping so that he could interrupt to lie down if he felt ill. He managed, however, to endure the half-hour show without crisis and handled the questions with almost his former wit and forcefulness.

If Wallace regains sufficient strength, his next public move is likely to be seek re-election as governor in 1974. Then, with his power over the statehouse secure for another four years, he can begin openly organizing a national campaign.

Bombs for Christmas

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Today, just six days before Christmas, the headlines told that the United States has resumed its bombing of North Vietnam. This news, I'm sure, has crushed the dreams and hopes of many people, and it is, indeed, both a national and a world tragedy. "Peace, peace, but there is not peace."

So this Christmas, instead of thinking only of ourselves and our own families, let's get down on our knees and pray for all those who must continue to suffer the consequences of this terrible nightmare that has descended upon our country and our world.

Science has shown how mankind can reach the moon, but science has not shown us how to achieve peace. Let's give prayer a chance; it may be our only hope.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick Lucey planned a meeting in his office today to map action by Wisconsin to aid victims of the earthquake at Managua, Nicaragua, during the weekend.

Plans to be considered included the sending of doctors, medical supplies and food to the Nicaraguan capital city.

Lucey held a news conference Christmas Day to appeal for funds to help Wisconsin's "sister state" in the Partners of the Americas program.

The governor apologized to newsmen for calling the conference on Christmas Day, but said the "crisis is of such an

Motorists urged to use caution

Decreased visibility and reduced traction are twin threats to driving safety at this time of year, Sheriff Calvin Spice and Sgt. Stanley Arnold, Outagamie county highway safety coordinator, reminded today.

"The safety-minded motorist compensates for poor visibility by reducing speed, keeping his windshield frost free, scraping accumulated snow from all windows in his vehicle, and maintaining a sharp lookout for hazards," Arnold said.

"If windshield wiper blades are streaking instead of wiping glass clean, it's time for replacing the blades," he added.

"For improved traction, it's advisable to have snow tires," he pointed out.

"When the going gets rough, it may be advisable to use studded tires. Better have anti-skid tire chains handy, too, for unusual conditions to avoid being stranded."

"Stopping distances on slippery surfaces are lengthened considerably, so it's important to increase the interval between moving vehicles," he added.

"Also, it's a good idea to anticipate stops and slow down gradually in your approach to intersections."

Robert Schroeder is new Prange president

Robert H. Schroeder, Greenwich, Conn., has assumed the presidency of the H. C. Prange Co., Wisconsin department store firm with two Appleton outlets.

Schroeder, who will operate out of Prange's Green Bay office, was elected earlier this month by the company board of directors and executive committee.

He fills the vacancy created when Henry C. Prange was promoted to board chairman.

Schroeder, a Wisconsin native and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison and Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., has been a senior vice president of the R. H. Macy Co., New York. He has been in retailing for about 25 years, most of the time with Macy's New York and San Francisco divisions in several executive capacities.

Prange operates 10 department stores and 11 discount department stores in nine marketing areas of Wisconsin, including Appleton, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Madison, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Sturgeon Bay and Wausau.

Merry Christmas, honestly

Maybe it was the spirit of Christmas. Maybe it was just plain honesty. But when Fox Citizens donated $52.25 last weekend for trees left in a lot by the Appleton Y's Men's Club, it boosted the faith of a few in human nature.

The club sells trees each year to raise funds for the YMCA. This year 2,200 trees were purchased and club members took turns manning a lot on E. Wisconsin Avenue.

Some of the trees are donated each year to the Salvation Army, Outagamie County Health Center and county welfare department.

The members operated the lot until 3 p.m. Saturday, selling most of the trees for a gross profit of near $10,000.

With an estimated 175 trees left, the men placed a note near the trees asking for donations and explaining the purpose of the lot.

When Allen Grey, who along with James Ottman is co-chairman of the event, checked the lot Sunday, he discovered $52.25 in donations and about 50 trees taken. "We were really impressed with the honesty of people," Grey said.

Family is just glad to be alive

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "It should have been a happy time. The city was all decorated for Christmas."

That's the description which Mrs. Homer Venters, the wife of a doctor on a year's sabbatical in Managua, Nicaragua, gave of how she felt.

"In the rubble, there were fallen Christmas trees and decorations and figures of Santas with their smiling faces torn up."

That's the description she gave of how it actually was after a massive earthquake struck the Central American city Saturday.

Mrs. Venters, who made it out of the country later that day with her five children, talked about the situation during an interview at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Barewald. Her husband, a professor of pediatrics and public health on leave from the University of Wisconsin, remained to help care for the injured.

The Wisconsin woman said Nicaragua was already experiencing a drought when the quake hit, and it could only reduce the amount available to eat.

"The highways were tied up, cutting off supplies, and supermarkets were being looted," she said.

The Venters family lived about five miles from the center of the city, which was damaged the most. Mrs. Venters said the poorest and most densely populated section was the central market district.

"Apparently the gas mains had broken in the central market and this is where the fires began, she said. "The buildings there are made of cardboard or wood, and some are sort of adobe huts."

Mrs. Venters said there was no way to fight most of the fires.

"One of the first buildings that was destroyed was the central fire station," she said.

The Venters family plans to leave Milwaukee today for Des Moines, Iowa, and live with Mrs. Venters' parents there until returning to Nicaragua in two or three weeks.

Venters had been teaching pediatrics at the national university and practicing at the general hospital in Managua for about five months.

"Those of us who survived are just glad to be alive," she said.

"Our family was fortunate, but we feel sad for the people we know in Nicaragua....It's such a beautiful country, with mountains and beaches and volcanoes. It's a place the tourists haven't found yet."

WIN enrollees get first choice in job openings

MADISON — Enrollees in the state's Work Incentive (WIN) program for employable adults on welfare will receive first preference in new hiring by the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations, the agency has announced.

The department, which administers the WIN program among its other duties, said WIN enrollees will be considered for vacancies ranging from clerical to middle-management positions.

At least 200 such openings in the department are anticipated in the next year, although some will be filled by promotions or transfers within the agency.

The WIN job candidates must meet the qualifications set for the vacant positions, the agency said, and they also must pass state civil service examinations before they can be hired.

Federal funds administered by the state WIN headquarters will be used to reimburse the state for up to 50 per cent of the starting wages for an average of six months to cover the costs of training, the agency added.

Examinations for vacancies will be opened to others only if there are no qualified WIN candidates.

The department said it was encouraging other governmental agencies, as well as private employers, to consider more job hiring through the WIN program.

The agency said WIN officials expect to place at least 650 WIN enrollees in jobs in the next six months. The federally-financed WIN operation arranges for job training and placement for individuals receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

The program, which operates through local offices of the Wisconsin State Employment Service, seeks to move the WIN enrollees from the welfare rolls to payrolls.

Officers are elected

It's great time to find real bargains

This is an excellent week in which to buy Christmas toys and Christmas cards.

It's a great time in which to find real bargains in the stores in costume jewelry, bicycles, men's shirts, radios, phonographs — many other treasured and traditional Christmas gifts for which millions of Americans paid all-time high prices only a few days ago.

There are three major periods during each year for storewide clearance sales: after Christmas, after Easter, after July 4. The reasons are abundantly obvious.

Most of you did buy your Christmas gifts in time to give them as gifts on the holiday. Surely, you have noticed that a gift received late has lost much of its magic and you look at a card that arrives after Dec. 25 with only a casual glance.

Clear out their stock

Just because this is what most of us do, after Christmas is an ideal time to buy things you need, for this is when the stores clear out what's left of their Christmas stock to make way for fresh merchandise.

Millions of you did not get everything you want for the kitchen, the rest of the house, the office, yourself. If included are items that are going on sale this very day and are not due for drastic style change, buy and save now.

Countless millions of you do not have a present "closet" — in which you store gifts to be given in the year ahead. If you know you'll need gifts, try to stock up your closet now and save time as well as money.

A basic money-saving guide to learn and keep always in mind lies in taking advantage of the post-Christmas clearances.

A second basic money-saving guide is to memorize and keep always in mind the calendar for bargains — of which the above is a two-month sampling.

And on top of these two, there are other fundamental rules which help slash your cost of living in face of the overall ever-upward price trends.

— Use the sales to put in supplies of things you and your family will use during the year. Watch and check which stores put what things on sale and when — especially the big-ticket items.

— Think through the meaning of differences in quality. It well may be that the extra utility of a higher-priced item will be more than worth the extra cost in durability and performance.

— Hold periodic family councils to discuss money matters. You can cut back on costs far better in an atmosphere of cooperation and understanding of your goals.

— Keep control of your credit purchases — a must — by shopping for credit with the utmost care and making sure that your monthly credit balances are at a reasonable minimum.

— Investigate the private brands in clothing and appliance lines as well as in food, test their quality, learn which private labels are reliable. The prices may compare most favorably, and, if service facilities are easily available, you may find major bargains in this area.

— Buy clothing that can be used in many combinations and thus be a far sounded purchase than any spectacular outfit. And give a plus to low maintenance.

— Buy in bulk but only when you'll use it all. Be sure spoilage and discards do not eat up your apparent savings and, of course, check whether the bulk price is really more attractive.

If you will follow the rules in this column, you can only come out ahead in 1973.

Quake not rated severe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The earthquake that ripped Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, was a catastrophic disaster in human terms, but to scientists the jolt was neither unexpected nor unusually severe.

The fact that it wrecked the city and killed thousands resulted not from extraordinary force but from three factors:

- It was centered very close to, or within, the city;
- The quake originated close to the surface of the city's loose, ashy land base;
- Few of Managua's buildings apparently were designed or built to withstand such temblors.

Seismographs at various California points indicated that Saturday's jolt had an intensity of 6.25 to 6.4 on the Richter Scale. Thus it was somewhat less intense than the 6.6 quake in February 1971 that rocked the San Fernando Valley north of Los Angeles and killed 65 persons.

"There was a difference," said Dr. William Cloud, associate research seismologist at the University of California at Berkeley. He said many Managuan houses were built from "rubble, mud and sticks," giving the victims little protection.

Dr. Don Anderson, director of the seismology laboratory at the California Institute of Technology, said Tuesday that a quake is not classified by scientists as "major" unless it reaches 7.5 on the Richter Scale.

The great San Francisco quake of 1906 was estimated at 8.25.

He said many temblors as strong as Saturday's occur frequently in Central America but go unreported because they are in remote areas.

The particular earthquake-prone feature of Central America, Anderson said, is an offshore trench. Here the Pacific Ocean floor is moving toward and under the mainland mass, causing great compressional forces.

Dr. Robert Brown of Menlo Park, Calif., a seismologist at the U.S. Geological Survey's National Center for Earthquake Research, noted that Managua is particularly vulnerable because it is built on loosely compacted volcanic debris. This material is shaken even more violently by a quake than a base of solid rock would be, he said.

Brown also said studies of previous temblors in Nicaragua "indicated that earthquakes of larger magnitude could be expected" and that "the effects would probably be more destructive..."

Saturday's quake also was estimated to have occurred less than 10 kilometers below the earth's surface, said a geophysicist at the National Earthquake Information Center for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Boulder, Colo.

This contributed to the devastation since shallower quakes tend to cause greater damage at the surface.

Skull believed that of Martin Bormann found

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A dental technician who assisted in treating Martin Bormann has recognized his handiwork in the dentures of a skull recently unearthed in Berlin and believed to be that of Hitler's long-missing deputy, Frankfurt Chief Prosecutor Wilhelm Metzner said today.

But Metzner said he will need more than the dental evidence before he can conclusively close the files on Bormann, who disappeared in the final days of World War II.

Further evidence is expected to come from the Institute of Dental Medicine in West Berlin, which is comparing the dentures of the skull with a sketch of Bormann's teeth made from memory by his dentist, a Dr. Blaschke. The dentist, who is now dead, made the sketch right after the war at the request of allied authorities.

"The original X-rays were lost," Metzner said in an interview. "When one has to rely on memory, there is a certain instability factor."

Nevertheless, the prosecutor emphasized, much of the evidence gathered to date tends to support a conclusion that the skull — one of two unearthed on Dec. 8 — is that of Bormann.

Joachim Richter, Metzner's assistant and a Bormann specialist, told The Associated Press last week that one skull "very probably" was Bormann's and the other that of Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger, the last physician in Hitler's bunker.

Richter also reported that the teeth in both skulls contain traces of what could be splinters from a glass cyanide capsule. This would indicate death by suicide, the classic mode of death for Nazi leaders at the end of the war.

Meanwhile, Metzner said, dental records from a Nazi document center in Berlin have made investigators "fairly certain" that one skull was Stumpfegger's.

The glass splinters found in the teeth, he said, "by all appearances" came from cyanide capsules, but after 27 years it is impossible to find traces of cyanide.

If one skull is Stumpfegger's, this would be further evidence that the other is Bormann's, Metzner said.

Former Hitler youth leader Arthur Axmann, who fled Hitler's bunker with Bormann, Stumpfegger and several other top Nazis, has testified that he saw the apparently lifeless bodies of Bormann and Stumpfegger on May 2, 1945.

The bodies lay near the Lehrter railroad freight station in Berlin. It was in this area that the skulls and other human bones were unearthed earlier this month by workmen digging trenches for power cables.

Nixon for higher gas rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may push for natural-gas price increases in an effort to stimulate development of new reserves and ease the nation's fuel shortage, an Interior Department energy expert says.

Kenneth Lay, executive director of the department's new energy board, said in an interview that the general approach of the gas-price hike would be to encourage some industrial users to shift to other fuels. Homeowners would be protected against the stiffest increases, he said.

Lay said the nation's energy shortage is so critical that some emergency short-term action is necessary.

Nixon, who is preparing a major statement on energy, has no direct authority to increase gas rates. But the Federal Power Commission does and Nixon will soon have two vacancies to fill on that five-member panel.

If the FPC deregulates gas prices, Lay explained, it could allow for price increases. Oil prices are not regulated and are essentially on a free-market basis.

Nixon also has a hand in natural gas production through his control over the Interior Department, headed by Rogers C.B. Morton. The department manages off-shore lands where new gas fields are most likely to be found.

Morton is already on record suggesting the administration may press for deregulation of natural gas prices.

Park again inaugurated in S. Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Chung Hee Park, who has ruled South Korea since 1961, took his fourth presidential oath today with a pledge to "build a great Korea — prosperous, just, full of hope, and above all, reunited."

The inaugural and promulgation of a new constitution earlier in the day marked the start of the Fourth Republic. It ended a Western-style democracy which had existed since 1948.

Park was elected to his third term last year and then rewrote the old constitution, having it approved by a national referendum Nov. 21. He said the reforms were needed so that the nation can meet international power politics and better pursue a peaceful reunification of South and North Korea.

Park declared in his inaugural speech that "these great reforms will usher in a new morale: a cooperative, productive and effective social order dedicated to prosperity and unification of our country."

"To prevent wars in the Korean peninsula, and to make it possible for the South and the North to seek peace and prosperity as one nation, I shall continue and broaden the dialogue with the North Korean Communists," he said.

Milwaukee theater licensing law declared unconstitutional

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Theaters showing sex films can still be prosecuted under city and state obscenity laws despite a U.S. District Court decision declaring Milwaukee's theater licensing ordinance unconstitutional, City Atty. James Brennan said Tuesday.

But Brennan agreed with Judge Myron Gordon that a new licensing ordinance would have to be drawn up if the city was to have one.

The licensing ordinance, which had been on the books for many years, allowed the Common Council to grant licenses "so as to promote the good order and welfare of the city," and was challenged by Donald Thomas of Racine after his license application for the Parkway Theater was denied.

The statute is "too imprecise, too broad and too devoid of definitive standards to meet constitutional requirements," Gordon ruled.

It "regulates controls and imposes sanctions upon freedom of speech and expression in terms that are too vague and lacking in clarity of expression so as to allow thereunder impermissible infringements upon guaranteed freedom," he said.

Minneapolis police try to halt robberies

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Plainclothes policeman armed with sawed-off shotguns have been stationed by the Police Department at various businesses in an effort to curb holiday season robberies.

Deputy Chief Carl Johnson said more than a dozen policemen will remain stationed at various city liquor stores, grocery stores and all-night gas stations through the first of the year.

He said sawed-off shotguns were selected as the weapons because of their convenience, psychological impact and "obvious firepower."
